Without Discussion Give Right to Haul Freight Through City Streets for 50 Years.

IGNORE PROTEST
BY BUSINESS MEN
Vacate Part of Twelfth Street Without Compensation to City — Mayor
Has 20 Days to Sign.

The Board of Aldermen, by a vote of 24 to 2 today, granted the Illinois Terminal System a franchise to haul freight in and out of the business district for 50 years.

Only Aldermen Ellers and Hirth voted "no." North St. Louis aldermen voted for the measure in the face of a last-minute protest from the North St. Louis Business Men's Association, which declared that the amendments of City Council member Muench to the bill did not remove its objectionable features.

Mayor Miller, who placed his strength behind the bill and called a special session to pass it when the railroad demanded immediate action, has 20 days in which to sign the measure.

Albert L. Schmidt, counsel for the Cass Avenue Bank and for the North St. Louis Business Men's Association, said that many residents of North St. Louis were in favor of a referendum on the bill and that further effort would be made to dissuade the Mayor from approving it.

Under the ordinance, the railroad must, within six months, begin the construction of a subway terminal at Twelfth and Broadway and proceed to the construction of a two-track subway, leading from the terminal and emerging to the surface at Cass avenue.

The tracks would cross Cass avenue, Howard and Mullany streets at grade, and then, under the ordinance, are to be lifted onto an elevated at Twelfth and North Market streets carrying them to the McKinley Bridge.

No Compensation to City — The Aldermen today passed an ordinance vacating a section of Twelfth street necessary to the construction of the terminal. The city is compensated in no way for the vacated streets.

The bill carries a provision binding the company to begin the grade crossing at Cass avenue if the city can find a way to do it. However, opponents to the bill point out the clause is not binding, as the State Public Service Commission has exclusive jurisdiction over all grade-crossing matters.

KILLS U. S. SECRET SERVICE MAN WHO QUESTIONS HIM

Slayer Escapes After Shooting
James W. Hair at Target Range in Morris-son, Colo.

MORRISON, Colo., July 12.—James W. Hair, United States Secret Service operative, was shot and killed without warning by a stranger who challenged his prowess with the pistol at an outdoor shooting gallery here late last night.

A few hours later a posse took J. F. Anderson, 23 years old, his wife, Irma, 19, and William Hyscarver, 36, into custody on a highway a short distance from Morrison, where their automobile had broken down.

Hair was engaged in a shooting match at the gallery with James Knoll, a farmer, and the latter's brother, Perry, a mechanic. After a round of shots had been completed, Hair was accosted by a stranger who reached in his pocket for a gun and said, "I'll shoot you a round."

Hair turned and asked the stranger what he was doing carrying a gun.

"I'm an officer," Hair informed him, "and I have a right to know." The stranger fired one shot into Hair's chest and he fell dead. The slayer escaped in the crowds pouring from a nearby dance hall.

Three men were killed here today when an airplane in which they were flying, crashed and burst into flames on a downtown street.

The dead are Earl Parker of Texas City, pilot; Max Weinberg of Boston, and Ralph Green, Galveston.

SPARTA (ILL.) AT WAR OVER ROUTE OF STATE HIGHWAY

Main Street Arrayed Against Broadway as to Which Shall Be High Road Through Town.

THREAT TO CARRY
CASE INTO COURT

All Either Side Asks of Other Is to Be Reasonable and Give Up Its Absurd Claims.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
SPARTA, Ill., July 12.—The era of sweetness and light prophesied for Sparta with the routing through it of a paved state highway has been unhappily shunted into the dim future by a terrific row that has overwhelmed the citizenry.

The same hard road, visions of which five years ago welded political Spartans into a sort of fraternal amalgam, has today split the Spartans into two angry, determined hostile factions.

State Highway No. 13, recently completed, passes through Sparta. Even the most obtuse Spartan will admit that. But there is an open argument as to just how Route No. 13 passes through Sparta.

The Main street camp of Spartans point with pride to official route signs lining their curbs and ask: "Can there be any doubt?" But the Broadway boys produce a manifesto of the City Council declaring the official passage is not along Main street, but along Broadway.

The Disputed Strip.
A little patch of muddy roadway, lying between the end of Main street and the beginning of paved Highway No. 13 is the present battleground of the Spartans. Main street cries out for the immediate completion of this bit of road, the distance of a few jumps, jolts and jingles in a weather-worn Ford, and Broadway shouts: "The concrete shall not pass."

Once the muddy patch is paved, Route 13, swinging west from Pinckneyville, will have been joined indissolubly to Main street, and Broadway's cause will be lost.

"We could not, in all conscience, approve the petition of persons belonging to the Main street faction, to have that small piece of roadway paved," said Mayor W. W. Lynn, speaking for the city council. "I was elected to office as a Broadway partisan. I would be yellow, sir, if I deserted my guns now. I can only characterize the point of view of the Main street faction as downright prejudice."

Plainly, for the case for Broadway will convince any fair-minded man.

"Cap" Moffat, Sparta coal baron who is backing the Main street faction, speaks vigorously of the refusal of the town council either to pave that or to let of road or to let him pave it. Moffat is putting up a filling station at the corner of Main and Market streets, but insists that his point of view is essentially disinterested and that he can judge this road fight on its merits.

"We have to take a broad view of these things," Moffat said. "We have to think of the community at large. The trouble with the Broadway faction is its selfishness, that's all."

Says Broad Vision Is Lacking.
Standing with Moffat is portly, ruddy "Charlie" Baird, Republican boss of Randolph County. Baird declares the action of the city council, in refusing the offer of public spirited Main streeters to lay that stretch of paving themselves is indefensible and unAmerican.

SEVEN MURDERERS ELECTROCUTED IN KENTUCKY PRISON

Four White Men and Three Negroes Executed at Eddyville Between Midnight and 1:30 A. M.

ONE CONFESSES
BEFORE HE DIES

Another Calls for Priest and Joins Church, and Two Sing—One of Number
From St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.
EDDYVILLE, Ky., July 12.—Seven men, convicted murderers, were electrocuted between midnight and 1:30 o'clock this morning at the State penitentiary here.

Four white men and three Negroes made up the seven whose deaths in the electric chair set a record for Kentucky. Sullen, defiant and prayerful by turns during their stay in the death house, the condemned men were reduced by fear to a condition bordering upon collapse as midnight approached.

White Men Go First.
The white men went to the chair first. Milford (Red) Lawson, 35 years old, Corbin, Ky., leading the way. He said he "was ready to forgive everybody" and was strapped in quickly. He was dead three minutes later. The murder of a neighbor in his mountain count had brought him there.

Orlando Seymour, 21, Louisville, was the second. An attempt to obtain a stay for him last night had failed and he met his fate apparently in a stupor. When his attorneys succeeded in arranging an insanity hearing before the County Judge here shortly after 8 o'clock he told his cell companions that he would at least get out of the prison alive. But the warden asked that the court be held in the chapel and it was the speaker's stand being used as a Judge's bench. When the Judge ruled he had no jurisdiction, Seymour sagged in his chair and did not speak again until the time for his execution, when he confessed to the murder for which he had been convicted, that of a Louisville merchant.

John Chubb at Last Moment.
Hacoe Dockery, 21, Harlan, Ky., followed. Originally he had been selected to die first, but just as the hum of the death chair dynamo filled the cell block, he asked for a priest, explaining that he wished to become a Roman Catholic. He was received into the church. Four hours earlier Dockery had sneered and flicked the ashes from a cigarette when Warden Chilton read the death warrant. Uttering no word he dragged slowly into the chair chamber and, as the hood was adjusted, started mumbling prayers. He was charged with slaying two women and a man.

One of Number from St. Louis.
Charles Paul Mittra, 23, St. Louis, Mo., was the fourth. He had been convicted of the murder of a grocer in Louisville in an attempted hold up. He had been rather dainty in his attitude toward the guards since the confinement here. He died in three minutes without making any statement.

The Negroes, apparently crushed earlier in the night by the nearness of death, recovered their spirits to a greater degree than the white men before the time came for them to pass into the chair room.

William Moore, 45, Louisville, was the first Negro to die. He said nothing. James Howard, also of Louisville, entered the chamber singing "Sweet Lily of the Valley," and, as he sank back in the chair, waved his hand, saying, "Gentlemen, how are you all feeling to-night?"

The last was Clarence McQueen, 28, of Cynthiana, who hummed a song and paid close attention to the manner in which the straps were adjusted.

Relatives to Get Bodies.
Relatives of the seven executed men who had seen them alive for the last time shortly after the reading of the death warrants, were permitted to take the bodies away today.

It was thought, however, that one or more might be buried in the tiny prison cemetery that lies just outside the towering walls. All day yesterday and last night Gov. Sarnoff at Frankfort was swamped with petitions seeking clemency. He reviewed the cases fully but refused to interfere.

THINKS BODY OF FLYER IS THAT OF CARRANZA

New Jersey Detective Says
Mexican, Not Seen on Flight, Was Killed.

By the Associated Press.
MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., July 12.—The body of an aviator, by County detectives to be that of Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexico's flying ace, was found in a wooded section 25 miles from here late today.

According to reports reaching the county detective's office here a message was found on the body from the United States Weather Bureau and addressed to Capt. Carranza.

Complete identification was delayed due to the out-of-the-way place in which the body and a wrecked airplane were found by the son of David Carr, who lives at Sandy Ridge, not far from the place where the aviator was killed.

Beyond the Weather Bureau message said to have been addressed to Capt. Carranza, there was no further information as to the identity of the dead flyer.

The fact that there has been no news of Carranza since he set out from the Roosevelt Field, New York, at 7:15 o'clock last night on a nonstop flight to Mexico City, strengthened the theory here that the Mexican aviator had been killed.

The flyer's body was found about 50 feet from a wrecked airplane. Persons at the scene expressed the opinion that the plane had been struck by lightning.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, July 12.—Spurring on relentlessly in what now appears to be a winning fight against the Arctic, the powerful Russian icebreaker Krassin has rescued five more of the crew of the ill-fated dirigible Italia, and was pounding on today to make further rescues, including that of a party, so far unidentified, sighted on Foyne Island.

Just a few hours after the rescue of Capt. Alberto Mariano and Capt. Filippo Zappi, members of the Italia's walking party, the Krassin crashed through the ice floes to reach the Viglieri group, which for 48 days had been stranded near Foyne Island off Northeast Land.

Hope for the party of seven men carried off in the bag of the Italia May 25 and since given up for lost has been revived by reports reaching Moscow indicating that the location of the group is known.

Noble Estimates Position.
Gen. Umberto Nobile, now at Kings Bay, has sent a message to the rescue ship stating that he thought the group, referred to as the Alessandri party, was not far from the present location of the Krassin. He said he thought the men were at 30:45 North Latitude and 30:31 East Longitude. This would place them northeast of Foyne Island, near which the Viglieri group was rescued.

With these reports, which were not confirmed, came a revival in Moscow of belief that Roald Amundsen, the missing Norwegian explorer, was likely to have joined this group in his flight from Norway to rescue the stranded men. The theory was first advanced by Fridtjof Nansen, noted explorer, that Amundsen was likely to have joined this group.

Men Were in Gondola.
The Viglieri group, rescued yesterday, was made up of Lieut. Alfredo Viglieri, Prof. F. Behounek, Czechoslovakian meteorologist, Giuseppe Biagi, radio operator, Filippo Troiano, engineer, and Natale Ceccioni, motorchief. These men were in the gondola of the Italia when the North Pole dirigible crashed, and constituted the main part of the Italia's crew for which hope had been held out.

Gen. Nobile was a member of this group until he was rescued June 24 by the Swedish flyer, Lieut. Einar-Paar Lundborg.

A full report of the rescue of the Viglieri group was received in Moscow from Prof. Samoilovich, leader of the Russian rescue expedition. His report follows:

Within three miles from the Viglieri group, the Krassin sighted the remnants of an airplane, the abandoned machine of the Swedish flyer, Lieut. Lundborg, and the red tent of the Italia, from which were

When at length they sighted the iceberg to which he and his crew were clinging would be smashed to bits and the two Italians waved their hands frantically to their would-be rescuers to stop. The Russians, fearing they would smash the little ice refuge, stopped about 200 yards away and the crew laid a small board bridge from the boat to the iceberg, along which the Italians were carried to safety.

Sweden Orders Search for Malmgren's Body If It Is Not on Ship.

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, July 12.—The War Department declares it is a matter of honor for the navy and the nation that Dr. Finn Malmgren's body should be recovered and brought home aboard a Swedish ship. First reports had it that the body of the scientist had been taken on the Russian icebreaker Krasin, which rescued Malmgren's two companions, Capt. Mariano and Capt. Zappi, but later advice received here indicated Malmgren had died and his body had been left behind.

The Minister of War has telegraphed the leader of the Swedish expedition at Spitzbergen ordering him to search for the body and stating that other members of the expedition not required for this purpose may return to Sweden.

The Swedish press declares that public opinion will require from Gen. Nobbe a clear report of what really happened to his expedition. They complain of Nobbe's secretiveness and ask whether he was keeping silence to see if any foreigners of his expedition would be rescued.

Malmgren's mother has completely broken down as only the previous day reports that her son had been found have renewed hope that he had been saved.

Minister in a First Fight.

There was a first fight in the midst of the proceedings, the Rev. D. Lindsay, of Britton, Ok., on the defense of an elderly man he said was being annoyed by a youth.

Immediately after his nomination, Varney announced that he would conduct an active speaking campaign throughout the South in an effort to unite all dry forces.

Pro-Hoover sentiment was considered responsible for the adoption of a resolution giving power to the national committee to replace its nominees with others if desirable, and likewise to bar prohibition candidates for presidential electors whenever such candidates might aid Gov. Smith's campaign.

Candidates and Platform.

Varney, the presidential nominee, has been a member of the national committee of the party for four years and was field secretary in New Jersey from 1912 to 1914. He is 43 years old, and is in the insurance business.

Edgerton, who is 59 years old, is a former newspaperman, and now lives on a farm and represents a Washington manufacturing concern.

A resolution was adopted by the party calling for the re-enactment of the law forbidding the manufacture of liquor in the home.

Six main planks were included in the prohibition platform as finally adopted. The stand of both major political parties on prohibition was recommended, but the "custom of political parties in charging all sins and shortcomings to each other" was denounced.

In addition to the prohibition plank, the platform favored farm relief and called on the voters to ignore prejudices conducive to breaking down the separation of church and state.

Move for Peace Commended.

The Government's steps toward securing a lasting peace were commended. In the natural resources of the "power trust" was criticized, and Congress was urged to enact laws to develop the Colorado River and bring about government operation of Muscle Shoals for the benefit of agriculture.

A "unity of action" plank urged voters to support only candidates who will work for the maintenance of the prohibition amendment and efficient law enforcement.

New York Insurance Man Is Nominated for Presidency by the Dry Convention in Chicago.

MINORITY FIGHT FOR HOOVER FAILS

James A. Edgerton, Alexandria, Va., Vice-Presidential Nominee, Is a Former Populist.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 12.—An insurance man and a farmer-salesman will head the national ticket of the prohibition party this year.

William F. Varney, Rockville Center, N. Y., was nominated for the presidency on the second ballot at the party convention last night following a persistent attempt by a small minority to nominate or endorse Herbert Hoover.

James A. Edgerton, Alexandria, Va., an Independence League official and a former Populist, who last week headed the Jefferson-Lincoln League move here to unite the Prohibition and Farmer-Labor parties, received the vice-presidential nomination on the first ballot. In his acceptance Edgerton said he had been a Democrat all his life.

Gov. Smith of New York was placed in nomination by delegates who opposed the Hoover support, which continued until the final balloting, when Varney received 62 votes to Hoover's 45. On the first roll call Varney had 62 and Hoover 42.

Lively Scenes Precede Voting.

Lively scenes preceded the actual voting, including several manifestations of dissension within the prohibition ranks following the nomination for Hoover and Smith. In the demonstration over the settlement toward Hoover, who was characterized as one who had expressed no clear-cut opinion on the prohibition question two delegates created excitement by nominating Smith, an avowed exponent of prohibition modification. Both voted for him on the first ballot.

Delegate John B. Hammond, former Chief of Police of Des Moines, gave vent to his anti-Hoover wrath by throwing his badge on the table, declaring that the party had been betrayed and walked out. He charged that the officers of the convention had "sold out" to Hoover.

SERVICE BOARD ORDERS UNION ELECTRIC AUDIT

Purpose Is to Determine Whether Further Cut in Rates Shall Be Made.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 12.—The State Public Service Commission today, on the motion of the city of St. Louis, ordered an audit of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. The purpose of the audit is to determine whether a further reduction in the company's rates should be made.

The electric company, several months ago, announced a reduction in its lighting rates, amounting to $600,000 a year, affecting its larger consumers, and a reduction of $100,000 a year in steam heat rates. The city holds that the reductions should have amounted to $1,400,000 a year, on the basis of its annual business.

The order for the audit goes into effect in 10 days. The commission, by the terms of the order, directs its accountants to make a thorough investigation, and determine the proper allowances for depreciation, investment, revenues and expenses. The audit is to show:

(1) Expenditures made by the company since Dec. 31, 1915, for additions, extensions and improvements to its plant and distribution system. (The valuation fixed at that time was $28,000,000; the company now claims a $59,000,000 valuation.)

(2) Results of the operation of the property for the last available annual period.

(3) Details of the accumulation of the depreciation reserve account. The city holds that the 3.56 per cent set aside for depreciation is too large, and says it has resulted in accumulation of a $10,000,000 balance, over replacement costs, since 1915.)

(4) Any other information or data which may be of help to the company in this proceeding.

The commission orders the company to place all its books, vouchers, work orders, contracts and other records, relative to the property and its operation, at the disposal of the commission's accountants.

About one year will probably be required for the audit. The company has taken the position that it does not oppose the audit, but that if it should result in a change of valuation which the company considers unfair, it reserves the right to fight the audit in court.

SPARTA AT WAR OVER ROUTE OF STATE HIGHWAY

is just prejudiced against the Democrats and he's working it off on us. He's chairman of the County Republican Committee and he has a big chance right now to help his home town here. But he's not doing that. He's working against Sparta. If he could only see the disinterested, majority point of view now."

Lined up with Mayor Linn and the City Council are "Doc" John Lyle, veterinarian and head of a flourishing automobile business situated at a key point on Broadway. Former Mayor Charles Skelly, on the other hand, head of a drug store on Main street, harshly opposes the Broadway project and finds the Broadway plan to build a subway under the M. & I. tracks, eliminating a grade crossing, "ridiculous." Skelly is heading a group that talks of bringing mandamus proceedings against the Town Council to force a popular election as to paving the end of Main street.

Main Street Pays the Mortgage.

One of the outstanding facts of the Sparta road fight is the admitted reasonableness of every party to it. The thing that everybody in Sparta today is seeking, with respect to the highway controversy, is "fair-mindedness."

Everybody is trying to abolish "selfishness." There was a great fight a few weeks ago over a mortgage held by an old lady who owned the property at the very end of Main street.

For Main street to join the end of Route 13 this woman's property was essential to the right of way. Obviously, if the Broadway highway could get the woman to sell, it would be a great victory.

Her financial worries temporarily over, she planted a young maple tree in the prized corner of her property, looking forward to the hypothetical glad day when the State Highway Commission shall pay off (if it does) property holders along the route.

Grade Crossing Figures.

There is a provision in the State laws that any official highway through a town must be "safe." The Mayor plans, upon elimination of a grade crossing over Broadway, to petition the highway commission for the immediate designation of Broadway as the State highway street, because Main street has also a grade crossing and has no plans to eliminate it.

The concrete highway over which the Spartans are perturbed was paid for out of a $50,000,000 bond issue floated by Frank O. Lowden. The war prevented road-building, however, and Gov. Len Small's highway commission later expended the money and laid out the roads.

The Broadway group in Sparta has a lingering hope that if Louis Emmerson, Republican, is elected Governor he will be able to take a fair-minded view of things and will discipline the former Small backers, including "Charlie" Baird. This latter possibility causes Main streeters to laugh in their sleeves, although they, too, expect that Emmerson, if elected, will be fair-minded and unprejudiced on the matter of the State highway.

STUDENT SOLDIERS WILL DANCE TONIGHT

250 Red Cross Girls to Be Guests—Men to Get Their Mileage Pay Today.

The first of the semi-weekly C. M. T. C. dances for the 30-day encampment at Jefferson Barracks will be held this evening. About 250 girls will be taken to camp by the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross and a girls' ukulele band will give a concert before the dance starts.

The student soldiers will receive their mileage pay this afternoon and many will visit St. Louis tomorrow and Sunday. Next week half of the students will see the Cardinals play and on July 23 all except the first battalion, which will be on the rifle range, will go on a boat trip as guests of the Streckfus line.

Rifles have been issued to the students and guard mount has been started. Guard is mounted each morning. The regular army furnishes a military guard throughout the night.

Yesterday's menu is an indication of what the students eat. Breakfast consisted of bananas, milk, bacon, potatoes, raisin bread, apple butter, butter and coffee; dinner, chicken, dressing, potatoes, carrots and peas, lettuce and tomato salad, rice, custard, bread and butter and lemonade; supper, braised beef with vegetables, potatoes, macaroni and cheese, pickled beets, cookies, milk, hot rolls, butter and ice water.

THREE DIE IN PLANE FALLS

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., July 12.—V. W. Barrette, 28 years old, field manager and an emergency pilot for the Texas Air Transport, holder of the air mail contract in Texas, was killed today when his plane crashed at the Houston airport.

Finally "Cap" Moffat brought her to a proper community attitude, and won the privilege of paying off the mortgage, thereby scoring a decisive tally for Main street. Her financial worries temporarily over, she planted a young maple tree in the prized corner of her property, looking forward to the hypothetical glad day when the State Highway Commission shall pay off (if it does) property holders along the route.

Grade Crossing Figures.

There is a provision in the State laws that any official highway through a town must be "safe." The Mayor plans, upon elimination of a grade crossing over Broadway, to petition the highway commission for the immediate designation of Broadway as the State highway street, because Main street has also a grade crossing and has no plans to eliminate it.

The concrete highway over which the Spartans are perturbed was paid for out of a $50,000,000 bond issue floated by Frank O. Lowden. The war prevented road-building, however, and Gov. Len Small's highway commission later expended the money and laid out the roads.

The Broadway group in Sparta has a lingering hope that if Louis Emmerson, Republican, is elected Governor he will be able to take a fair-minded view of things and will discipline the former Small backers, including "Charlie" Baird. This latter possibility causes Main streeters to laugh in their sleeves, although they, too, expect that Emmerson, if elected, will be fair-minded and unprejudiced on the matter of the State highway.

In days of yore in Sparta a

CLERK ADMITS $500 SHORTAGE AND SURRENDERS

Walter Rau, 26, Tire Company Employee Gone Since Last Monday Appears at Police Station.

Walter Rau, who was sought for questioning about a $500 shortage in his accounts as bookkeeper of the Johnson Bros. Tire Co., 2145 Washington boulevard, walked into the Dayton Street Police Station this afternoon and surrendered.

He admitted, police said, taking about $500 from the company over a period starting last April 22. The initial shortage increased, police said he explained, when he was asked to make it up by betting on dog and horse races and gambling at Tony Foley's St. Louis County establishment.

Rau, who is 26 years old and resides at 2013 Walton road, St. Louis County, aroused his wife last Monday morning and announced he was departing on a fishing trip to the Ozarks. He bundled his fishing tackle into the family Ford and drove off.

Five hours later, Jesse Johnston of the Johnson Bros. Tire Co., arrived at the Rau home and inquired for the bookkeeper, who had not come to work Saturday.

Informed his bookkeeper was fishing, Johnston did nothing, but yesterday, when Rau was still missing, he called in police and asked for Rau's arrest, declaring an audit of Rau's books showed a $500 shortage, which many run higher, the discrepancy representing the difference between money which Rau was given at various times to deposit in the bank for the company and the amounts actually deposited.

Before departing, Rau had handed his wife an envelope and instructed her to cash the contents, if she needed money during his absence. The envelope contained a one-way train ticket to New York, which Rau evidently had purchased before he decided to go on a fishing trip.

Tells How to Eradicate Caterpillars on Trees

Shaw's Garden Superintendent Gives Suggestions on Killing Pest Prevalent in St. Louis This Year.

Unusual prevalence of tent caterpillars in St. Louis has caused up to a dozen calls a day on Shaw's Garden for information on eradicating the pest, which strips trees of foliage and festoons them with its unsightly "tents."

"These caterpillars congregate in colonies, enclose themselves in 'tents' and then feed on the leaves within the 'tent,'" explained George H. Pring, superintendent of the garden. "They prefer mulberry, but this year they have taken to maple, sassafras, pear—almost everything."

"Usually we send one man about the garden to burn them from the mulberry, but this year we have had several campaigns against them, sending out a crew with equipment for a small war."

"The two easiest ways for the average citizen to eradicate them are to cut off the small twigs with the 'tent' and burn them, or the oil-soaked rags or waste on a long pole and burn them on the tree."

"These suggestions apply to the pests when they remain in 'tents.' We have had a number of reports, however, that they were scattering over the trees. Spraying with arsenate of lead then will eliminate them. It may be obtained from seed concerns, but requires a spraying outfit."

"The tent caterpillar does not kill trees, but absolutely ruins their appearance for the season. And if the pests are not promptly killed they return the next season in larger numbers."

"One encouraging thing in all this is the evidence that St. Louisans are taking more interest in the upkeep of their lawns and trees. One man telephoned to ask whether there was any way to force his neighbor to spray; he was trying to protect his own trees, but without much success against invasions of caterpillars from the neglected neighbor's yard. The only thing we could tell him was to use persuasion and the formula, 'Let us spray.'"

SAYS SKIP-STOP DECISION RESTS ONLY WITH STATE BODY

Counselor Muench, Tells Olive Street Merchants to Take Complaint to Service Commission.

The only recourse for merchants along Olive street who are dissatisfied with the skip-stop system in operation by the Public Service Co. is to file a complaint with the Missouri Public Service Commission, City Counselor Muench said today in announcing why his office would not issue against the carrier a violation of section 2191 of the City Code, requiring cars to stop at intersecting streets.

Muench quoted the opinion of the State Supreme Court in the Packman case, which involved the validity of a city ordinance prohibiting the selling of street car transfers, decided a year ago, in which it was held that "the City of St. Louis is without the power to regulate to any extent, directly or indirectly, the rates of a public utility, or to prescribe regulations or practices which affect such rates."

The power, the opinion goes on to say, belongs to the Public Service Commission, which has jurisdiction in the skip-stop controversy as well, Muench explains, on account of the expression "regulations and practices."

Alexander J. Filipiak, attorney for several Olive street complainants who attempted to have a Maryland car stop at Cardinal avenue Thursday, insists there is no connection between the opinion cited by Muench, since it deals with rates and matters which affect rates, whereas the city ordinance stipulates that street cars shall be stopped for taking or discharging passengers at intersection streets.

ST. LOUIS BRIDGE PLAYERS LEADING BY 5200 POINTS

Only 14 Rubbers of 52 Scheduled Remain to Be Disposed of in Tonight's Play.

The two St. Louis auction bridge experts, C. Drummond Jones and Thomas S. McPeeters, who are playing a match of 52 rubbers with Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Culbertson of New York, virtually clinched the victory at the Racquet Club last night when they increased their lead from 2900 to 5200 points. The four men played 12 rubbers Tuesday night, 12 Wednesday night, and 14 last night, leaving 14 to be completed in tonight's play.

The match resulted from a challenge by the New Yorkers after the St. Louisians had defeated another team from New York about three months ago.

KIDNAPED CHILD FOUND UNINJURED AT MIAMI, FLA.

Four-Year-Old Son of Wealthy Hotel Owner Taken From Bed During Mother's Absence.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., July 12.—Billy McAllister, 4 years old, who was kidnapped last night from the home of his mother here, was found unhurt in a vacant house in Coral Gables this morning by persons living next door who heard him pounding on the door of a locked closet. The child said his kidnappers were a "fat man and a woman."

An hour before the boy was taken home, Mrs. E. C. McAllister, his grandmother, a wealthy Miami hotel owner, had completed arrangements to pay $3000 ransom demanded for his return. Her decision was made after a second telephone call to the McAllister home this morning from a man who said the abductors would return Billy to his home in an automobile provided $3000 in cash were available for immediate exchange and no police officers were summoned to the vicinity.

Fearful for the safety of the boy, the grandmother and the widowed mother, Mrs. May McAllister, requested police to hasten investigation and made ready to meet the demands of the kidnappers.

The child was abducted from his bedroom on the ground floor about 9:30 o'clock last night while only his grandmother was in the house. She heard the child scream and rushed to the bedroom only to find him missing and the window screen propped open.

Sheriff Henry R. Chase, who personally took up an investigation, learned that a woman lookout stood on the McAllister porch while the kidnappers were procuring a saw horse and a board to facilitate speedy removal of the child through the window. The woman and one or more men companions escaped in an automobile which had been parked near the home.

BIXBY PREDICTS BIG AIR INDUSTRY FOR ST. LOUIS

Chamber of Commerce
Head, Now on European Tour, Expects Striking Development in 3 Years.

By THOMAS W. PARRY JR.
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHERBOURG, France, July 1 (By mail).—Within three years St. Louis will be the leading American center of an industry comparable in a degree to the automobile industry, if she can hold her present position in aviation.

This declaration was made here by Harold M. Bixby, chairman of the board of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, who is participating in the two-month aviation study tour of European countries. The trip is sponsored by the Air Board of the Chamber.

"While we are developing our airports, St. Louis must not lose sight of the industrial side of aviation," said Bixby.

Lesson From Detroit. "When cities throughout America were talking about good roads, Detroit was going a step further by developing the automobile industry. Consequently that city stands today as the center of the industry. Of course we want leading airports in St. Louis and well-lighted routes, but the development of industries is our most important task."

"I believe St. Louis now ranks as the leading aviation center of the country, having more aeronautical industries than any other American city."

During their voyage to Cherbourg, the 125 St. Louisans in the Air Board party presented to H. Harvey, commander of the S. S. Lapland, a bronze replica of the medal presented to Col. Lindbergh by St. Louis.

With lectures, dances, bridge tournaments, "horse racing" and deck games being held throughout the nine-day ocean journey to Europe, time moved rapidly for the St. Louisans.

"Horse Race" on Ship. One of the most entertaining features was the "Fairmount meeting" of the Lapland Turf Club, which was run on the promenade deck. Though the horses were wooden and were raced around the deck track under the direction of Arthur C. Astle, purser, the event was comparable in excitement to a Fairmount Derby. Among the horses entered in the first race was "No Trump" by Poor Partner out of Luck, and "Stalled by Auto Out of Gasoline." "Proposal by Bachelor Out of His Mind" was another. "Flying Fish" owned by Carl F. G. Meyer captured the Lindbergh Steeplechase, while "Haste" and "Rolled Stockings," owned by Emmett Thompson and Tom Murphy, finished second and third.

Throughout the trip, the sea was calm and there was little sickness among the St. Louisans. Passengers had their soup at 10 and tea and cakes at 4 every afternoon. Radio reports furnished news of Smith's nomination and results of the Browns' and Cardinals' games, as well as stock market quotations. Walter Weisenburger, president of the Chamber of Commerce, delivered a lecture on "Wanderings Here and There in Europe."

RAT BITES SLEEPING CHILD
Joseph Busalaki, 12, Treated at Hospital for Three Wounds.
Joseph Busalaki, 12 years old, asleep on the floor of his home at 2122 Palm street, awoke last night to find a rat nibbling at his right hand.

He was treated at City Hospital. Auto License Plate Contract Let. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 12.—

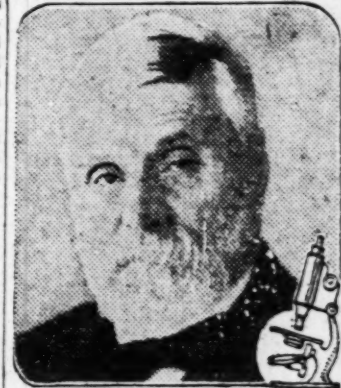

Dark green license plates with white figures and border will mark all Illinois automobiles in 1929. It is announced today by Secretary of State Emmerson in awarding a contract for manufacture of approximately 1,500,000 of them. The W. F. Robertson Steel and Iron Co. of Springfield, O., obtained the award on a bid of $384 a pair, which is somewhat less than the price paid for the 1928 plates.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

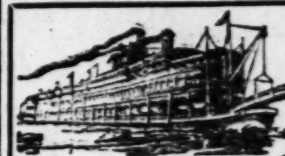

Dr. Caldwell, 63

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit-forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written as to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years, he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without gripping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let it go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

NORRIS CHARGES POWER TRUST CONTROLS PARTIES

Senator Declares It Is Greatest Monopoly Ever Put Together by the Ingenuity of Man.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 13.—Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, on declining the presidential nomination of the Farmer-Labor party, said that his action was not prompted by satisfaction with the two major political parties, or their platforms.

"For reasons that I have several times publicly expressed, I cannot accept the nomination for President tendered me yesterday in Chicago," he said. "This does not mean that I am not in full sympathy with those who are opposed to the platforms and the presidential nominees of the major political parties."

Norris declared that the present system of choosing a President is "antiquated and illogical" and added that "it is a practical impossibility for the people to select anyone who had not first been nominated by one of the dominant political parties. . . . This system must continue to grow even worse until the people become sufficiently aroused to demand that they have a direct voice and vote in the election of a chief magistrate." Says Power Trust Controls Parties.

"We are confronted in this campaign with a practical demonstration of the power of monopoly," the statement says. "It was sufficiently powerful to compel both of the great political parties to remain silent upon the great fundamental political issue now before the country for solution."

That issue, the Senator asserted, had been raised by what he called the power trust, and described as "the greatest monopoly that has ever been put together by the ingenuity of man."

The Senator dwelt at length on what he termed the activities of the trust in monopolizing the natural resources of the country and said "it was sufficiently powerful to prevent the great Republican party from putting in its platform any word of condemnation. . . . Its emissaries," he said, "went from that convention to Houston and compelled that great political organization in its platform to remain silent on this, the most important question now before the American people. There are indications now that the leaders of these great political parties have entered into a gentlemen's agreement by which nothing shall be said or done in the campaign to interfere with the continued grip and control of this trust, and that anyone who violates any such understanding shall be denounced as a mud-slinger, as a Bolshevick and as an all-round enemy of civilized society. This trust was sufficiently powerful to prevent a President of the United States from signing the Muscle Shoals bill and through the expenditure of millions of money, among other things, it has so far prevented any action upon the Boulder Dam project."

Power Question Paramount Issue. Asserting that money which "the power trust" had raised for propaganda purposes had "been wrung from the people in exorbitant charges," the Senator declared "the trust" would "laugh with fiendish glee while the people are deluded and worked into excitement over artificial issues in the presidential campaign with the honest idea that they are saving the country from ruin."

"The power question is by far the paramount issue," he concluded, "and yet the dominant parties are as silent as the grave upon the subject. About the only practical thing that the people can do in this campaign is to elect as many

DRIVER HELD FOR HOMICIDE IN FATAL SLUGGING OF MAN
Fred Felders, 29 years old, a press feeder, 3421A Pennsylvania avenue, was held for homicide under $5000 bond by a coroner's jury today at an inquest in the death of Harry H. Jones, 27, a carpent, of 2224 Park avenue, who was struck by Felders Wednesday morning in a fight at Jefferson and Park avenues.

Felders' sister, Mrs. Louise Dodge, testified that her brother stopped his machine abruptly to avoid hitting Jones, who was running for a street car. Jones, she declared, berated her brother with vile and obscene language and invited him to get out and fight.

Felders alighted and knocked Jones down, she declared.
Felders was held principally on the testimony of C. L. Hickerson, street car motorman, who said he glanced from his car and saw Felders strike three blows with his fist at Jones as the latter ran toward the street car. Jones went on to his work but became ill and was taken to the City Hospital where he died of skull fracture.

GOV. BAKER INDORSES AIRPORT BOND ISSUE

Feels Sure St. Louis Will Vote for Proposal to Acquire Flying Field.

Gov. Baker today joined Mayor Miller and other civic and business leaders in urging that St. Louis pass the $2,000,000 airport bond issue proposal to be submitted to the voters at the primaries Aug. 7.

"I feel sure that St. Louis will be ready and willing to vote the proposal for the permanent acquisition and improvement of a municipal airport," he wrote Edwin R. Meissner, chairman of the Municipal Airport Bond Issue Committee. "As the largest city in Missouri and one of the largest cities of the country St. Louis should have a good flying field."

It was announced yesterday that the Carondelet Improvement Association and the Junior Chamber of Commerce had voted to indorse the proposal as necessary to the city's industrial growth.

The North St. Louis Business Men's Association pledged its support last night to the airport bond issue, and contributed $50 to the campaign in behalf of the bond issue. This was done after the need for an airport had been emphasized by John B. Edwards, former chairman of the Election Board, in an address before the association at North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets.

"We have been told that the 'spirit of St. Louis' has been placed in the Smithsonian Institute," said Edwards. "The real spirit of St. Louis does not occupy space in any building but dwells in the hearts of the people of our city. All of our people are possessed of this spirit, with an admiration for Col. Lindbergh and a desire that St. Louis shall lead as an airport of America, and they will support this bond issue."

Edwards pointed out that other large cities of the country had taken the lead in building great airports in hope of sharing prominently in the new air developments.

SCHNEIDER AGAIN DECLARES KOELN CONTROLS CAULFIELD

Gubernatorial Candidate, Addressing Audience at Odeon, Repeats Charge Against Collector.

Speaking before an audience variously estimated at from 600 to 900 persons at the Odeon last night, William R. Schneider, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, reiterated his charge that Henry S. Caulfield, one of his opponents, was controlled by Collector Koeln of St. Louis.

Schneider declared, as he has previously stated, that Koeln has illegally retained fees, that he fails to account for interest on tax moneys, and that "he is planning to inject his system into the State government."

The Baker administration, which is supporting Caulfield, is dissipating the State's money by inefficiency and willful waste, Schneider charged, declaring that State employees are campaigning for Caulfield on their expense accounts.

HARRY BERNARD ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF ARSON

Justice of Peace Finds Evidence Insufficient to Connect Him With East Side Fire.

Harry Bernard, 28 years old, of 5723 Waterman avenue, was acquitted yesterday by justice of the Peace A. J. Stocker of East St. Louis of a charge of arson growing out of a fire in the Lloyd Department Store, Collinsville and St. Louis avenues, East St. Louis, at 1 a. m. July 4.

Justice Stocker said evidence presented yesterday was not sufficient to hold Bernard, as the arson plot was no more definitely connected with him than with six other merchants interested in the stock of the store. Fire Chief James Ames of East St. Louis testified a fish bowl containing three and a half gallons of coal oil and a quantity of black gun powder was found after the fire had been put out. Pieces of another bowl, presumably the one which caused the fire, were lying nearby.

BOY DROWNED AFTER JOINING SWIMMING PARTY OF MEN

Clothing Identified as That of Charles Grego, 16; Body Not Yet Recovered.

The clothing of a youth who joined a swimming party at the foot of Poplar street yesterday afternoon and was drowned was identified today by Charles Grego, 508 South Fourth street, as that of his son, Joseph, 16.

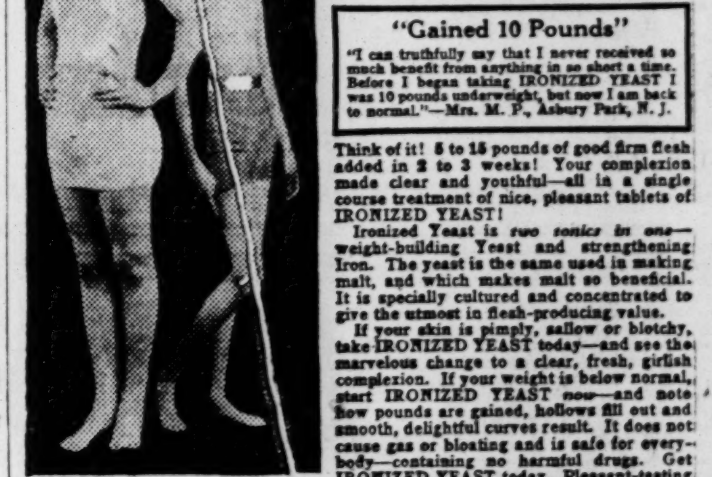

Several men told police that the boy, a stranger to them, had been caught in an undertow after re- then in the river. The body has moving his clothes and joining not been found.

WORLD WAR MEMORIAL UNVEILED IN FERGUSON

Storm Drives Dirigible, Which Was to Hover Overhead, Back to Scott Field.

The unveiling at Ferguson yesterday of a memorial to its men who served in the World War was carried out without the presence of a dirigible from Scott Field, which was scheduled to hover over the scene, but which was turned back to its own field when a storm came out of the West.

The airship, carrying flowers to be dropped during the ceremony, was crossing the Mississippi River below Alton when it became apparent it was likely to be caught in a storm. It was headed back to the field and landed before the storm, which was not extremely heavy, had caught up with it. The flowers were dropped overhead on the way back to lighter ship and make the landing as easy as possible.

The Sixth Infantry band and a firing squad participated in the ceremonies at the memorial, which is in the center of the street car loop. James Belleville, president of the Business Men's Association; City Counselor Herbert E. Bryant, the Rev. Arthur Mather, former pastor of the Ferguson Methodist Church, and Forrest C. Donnell, attorney, spoke.

CZECHO-SLOVAKS SQUARE MATCH WITH ITALIANS

By the Associated Press.
MILAN, Italy, July 12.—Baron H. L. de Morpurgo, Italy's tennis star, easily won the 5th of the Davis Cup European zone final matches from P. Macenauer, Czecho-Slovakia, today, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Macenauer was no match for the Italian star and did not threaten to take a set. De Morpurgo, who is the mainstay of his country, was in command of the situation every moment, employing a finely rounded game featured by a severe forehand drive and an accurate backhand.

The result of the match was much as had been expected as Italy is a heavy favorite to defeat Czecho-Slovakia, thus gaining superiority in the European zone and meeting the United States team at Paris a week hence or the right to challenge the French holders of the cup. With De Morpurgo's victory it remained necessary for the Italians to win two of the remaining three singles matches or one of them and the doubles, to clinch the series.

Czecho-Slovakia evened matters at one victory apiece when Jan Kozelush defeated the Italian, Garlini, in four sets, 6-1, 3-2, 3-6, 6-4, in the second of the singles matches.

COEN WILL NOT PARTICIPATE IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, July 12.—The American Davis Cup tennis team, which meets the winner of the Italy-Czecho-Slovakia elimination in the interzone final here a week from today, for the right to challenge the French, will be chosen from John Hennessey, Francis T. Hunter, George Lott and William T. Tilden.

"Big Bill" himself was authority for this statement today, but the American captain was unprepared to say whether he and Hunter would play doubles or what player would share the singles burden with him.

"This simply means that Junior Coen's Davis Cup year has not yet arrived," Tilden was asked. "Yes, but I miss my guess if he has to wait much longer," he replied.

Team in Fine Condition.
Coen, 16-year-old Kansas City boy, who is the youngest player ever to win a place on a United States Davis Cup team, has been getting valuable experience in international competition abroad.

The American team, in perfect condition, is practicing two or three hours daily at the Roland Garros stadium, where the interzone final and challenges round will be played.

Hunter and Lott engaged in three full sets today with the thermometer above 90 in the shade.

Tilden will consult Joseph West and Samuel Cottom of the United States Davis Cup Committee, who were expected from New York on the liner Paris this evening, before announcing the exact lineup of the team.

COMPSTON TIES HERON FOR LEAD IN EASTERN GOLF TITLE TOURNAMENT

By the Associated Press.
DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., July 12.—Archie Compston of England was the only one of the leaders to maintain the fast pace of the early rounds of the third leg today of the Eastern open golf championship at the Wolf Hollow Country Club.

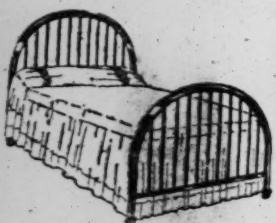

Compston shot a 63, two under par, and was able to tie Al Heron of the Berkshire Country Club at 214. Heron skidded on this round and returned a 74.

CZECHO-SLOVAKS SQUARE MATCH WITH ITALIANS

By the Associated Press.
MILAN, Italy, July 13.—Baron H. L. de Morpurgo, Ital.'s tennis star, easily won the 5-1 of the Davis Cup European zone final matches from P. Macenauer, Czecho-Slovakia, today, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.
Macenauer was no match for the Italian star and did not threaten to take a set. De Morpurgo, who is the mainstay of his team, was in command of the situation every moment, employing a finely rounded game, featuring a severe forehand drive and an accurate backhand.

COMPTON TIES HERON FOR LEAD IN EASTERN GOLF TITLE TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.
DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., July 12.—Archibald Compton of England was the only one of the leaders to maintain the fast pace of the early rounds of the third leg today of the Eastern open golf championship at the Wolf Hollow Country Club.
Compton shot a 69, two under par, and was able to tie Al Heron of the Berkshire Country Club at 214. Heron skidded in the third round and returned a 74.
Aubrey Boomer, St. Cloud, Minn., who was in second place last night, three strokes behind Heron, took a 77 today and at 218 was in a tie with Willie Klein of Wheatley Hills, and Willie MacFarlane of Oak Ridge, who failed to better their earlier rounds, each taking 74.
Joe Turnesa of Elmford, had a 75 and a total of 219. Emmett French of Southern Pines, had a total of 220.

DICING WINNER OF POCAHONTAS PURSE AT EMPIRE

By the Associated Press.
EMPIRE CITY, N. Y., July 12.—Over a heavy track Le Rosenbergs' Dicing with Johnny Callahan in the saddle scored in a sensational finish when she led home a good field of sprinters in the Pocahontas handicap here today. Dicing was ridden with great confidence. Callahan was content to let her rate along in early part, but in the stretch she closed gamely and won by a head from Steffaly who in turn took the place by a length and half from Herade.
Sky Light and Dear Lady who beat Dicing in their last meeting finished last and next to last.

American Yacht Wins First Race

By the Associated Press.
DUNOON, Scotland, July 12.—The United States six-meter yacht, "American," won the first of the series of races on the Clyde River for the new British-American Cup.

YANKEES WIN ONLY 4 OUT OF 9 FROM WESTERN CLUBS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, July 12.—The washout of the Tiger-Yank final today neither improved the standing of the league leaders, the triumph of Manager Huggins, nor the showing the slumping Huguenin made against the Western invader.
The Yanks have met two of the Western teams, with equally unimpressive results, as Huggins wins 12. The Browns landed at the Stadium for a set of three double-headers and broke even with the Yanks. The Tigers, who hadn't won a game since the 10th, came next for four games and, with one nailed out, are leaving with a record of two won and one lost. The Yanks have lost five and won four in the current stand against the West. The Indians arrive with a double-header tomorrow. Huggins is hoping for the best. So is the rest of the league. Their ideas of the best, however, vary.

Marriner Fights Hassen.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 12.—Les Marriner, the University of Illinois football player who became a heavyweight boxer, fights Hagan Hassen of Turkey in a 16-round wind-up here tonight. Hassen is a newcomer to Chicago but Marriner is known for his string of 15 knockouts since turning professional. In a six-round semiwindup, Billy Showers of St. Paul will fight Jimmy Sherod of Chicago, in the 152-pound class.

ONLY 3 HORSES NAMED TO START IN EMPIRE DERBY

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 13.—The smallest field in the history of the Empire City Derby will parade to the post in that race at Empire City tomorrow afternoon. Only three horses, Genie, Ironsides and Bridgegroom, will contest the $50,000 added purse over a mile and one-quarter. Genie, winner of the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct, will probably be the public's choice, with Ironsides next. Bridgegroom is an outsider.
Genie and Ironsides are sons of the great stallion Man O' War and if either wins it will mark the first success of that sire in the Empire Derby. Genie, owned by Gifford A. Cochran, is the best of Man O' War's 3-year-old sons and should have no trouble in winning tomorrow's stake. He defeated a great field in the Dwyer Stakes with ease, and is at the top of his form. Ironsides races in the colors of Robert L. Gerry and has run some remarkable races this season. He is not classed as good as Cochran's racer.
Track Muddy.
Heavy rains last night transformed a lightning fast track into a quagmire. The course will be in bad shape for the derby.
This year's running of the Empire Derby is the twelfth. Bois-Rose won last year and earned $7000 for his owner.
The secondary offering at Empire is the East View Stakes for 2-year-olds at six furlongs. Only seven are named. Harry Payne Whitney, owner of a good band of juveniles, is represented by the consistent Lew Black. James B. Tyler, owner of the Empire course, will start Lycidas, a recent winner.
The remainder of the field consists of John B. Grey Hawk, Ritzzy, Windswept and Footprint. The East View is valued at $5000 and was won by Sun Edwin last year.

WHITE SOX, UNDER BLACKBURN, HOLD 5-3 RECORD ON TRIP

CHICAGO, July 14.—Since the Chicago White Sox pulled their "under new management" sign last week and hid eastward to invade the seaboard clubs, there has been little if anything lacking to suit their home town fans.
The Sox have won five and lost three games on their present Eastern trip, their first start under the wing of Russell "Lena" Blackburne who stepped into Ray Schalk's shoes when the "cracker" resigned on the Fourth of July.
Blackburne took his gang to Washington and before the fans hardly had a chance to think about the change in managers, the Sox proceeded to take the series from the Senators, winning three out of four, and moving up to the top of the second division. The Sox then trooped to Philadelphia to take the second place Athletics and up until yesterday they had fought them on even terms, winning two and losing two.

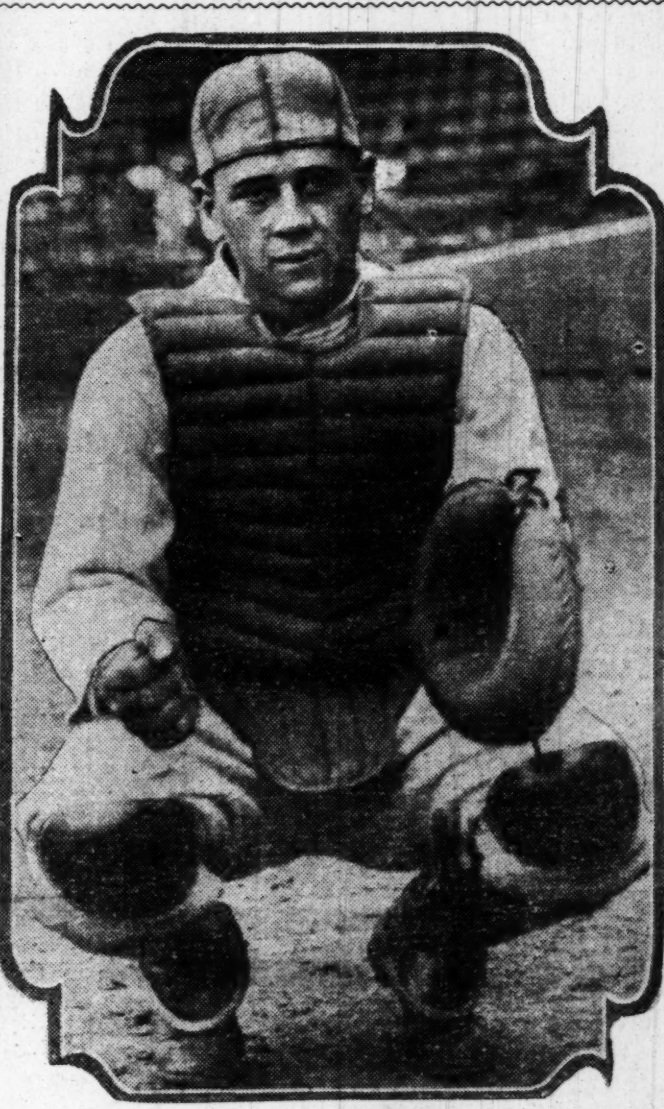

ILLINOIS U. GOLF CAPTAIN WINS MATCH IN ROCKFORD TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.
ROCKFORD, Ill., July 13.—Charles M. Fish of Joliet, captain of the University of Illinois golf team, eliminated Johnny Simpson of Pa. in the first round of the championship tournament at the Rockford Country Club invitational meet today.
Simpson was medalist of the meet, turning in a 70, two below par, yesterday in qualifying. Fish shot a 75 in the qualifying round. In another first-flight match 30-year-old Wheaton put Walker Crowe, former State amateur champion, out of the running, 5 and 2.

BIG SUM TO BE SPENT ON LINCOLN FIELDS

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 13.—At least $200,000 will be spent for improvements of the racing plant at Lincoln Fields within the next year, according to Col. Matt Winn, directing head of the track.
Increased seating capacity of the grand stand, a new restaurant, lounge, added landscaping, beautifying of the paddock structure, and addition of swings and benches are a few of the improvements listed.

State Boxing Commission, at Meeting Here, Plans to Stamp Out Fly-by-Night Promotion

By Damon Kerby.

When the State Boxing Commission meets in St. Louis tomorrow in its annual gathering, one of the chief points of business, according to representatives of the commission, will be investigating the applications of organizations and matchmakers who file requests to operate in St. Louis during the fiscal boxing year.
Officials connected with the State commission have declared that the lines are going to be drawn tight, during the coming year, in order to avoid any semblance of fly-by-night promotion methods in Missouri. Only organizations that are known to be thoroughly responsible will be granted licenses, and this also will hold good in regard to the licensing of matchmakers, according to officials.
Side-Stepping the Law.
Only patriotic, benevolent, fraternal and charitable organizations are eligible to conduct boxing bouts under the State boxing law. These organizations, when granted licenses, in turn hire matchmakers to put on their boxing shows. These men are the real promoters, while the organizations collect a certain per cent of the gate receipts for lending their name to the enterprise.
Among others, one local boxer hopes that the commission will thoroughly investigate the general fitness of the "matchmakers" who apply for licenses. The fighter is Dave Knost, still green in the professional field, but who held the national amateur junior heavyweight championship in 1926.
Knost Still Unpaid.
Although Knost now accepts money for his services, he has yet to receive any remuneration for his appearance against Rocco Straginalia here, this spring, according to his manager, George Wilsman. It seems that Knost, having taken part in one of the late bouts did not reach the box office until all available funds had been paid out.
It will be recalled that Straginalia's end of the purse was forfeited when he quit before Knost in the first round.
Jimmy La Capra, said to be from Kansas City, who was the "matchmaker" in this case, acting Promoters Want Open Meeting

Several local promoters, learning of the meeting, today asked the support of Maj. Edward J. Hanlon, State inspector for St. Louis, to obtain a hearing for them. Grievances concerning an overstaffed parade list, the posting of forfeits, holding up of payment of purses and other points needed clearing up, they said, and thought that a hearing by the commission, would help bring about a better understanding of their troubles on the part of the members of the commission.

RAILROAD TO GIVE PASSENGERS RESULTS OF BASEBALL GAMES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MEXICO, Mo., July 12.—In response to requests by passengers for results of the daily baseball games, the Chicago & Alton Railroad has arranged a baseball service for the fans.
Passengers on train No. 22, from Kansas City to St. Louis, will get baseball bulletins here. Those on No. 21, from St. Louis to Kansas City, will receive them at Slater, Mo. No. 5, Chicago to Kansas City, will learn the result of the games at Bloomington, those on No. 6, Kansas City to Chicago, at Springfield, Ill.

MANCUSO GOES TO MINNEAPOLIS UNDER OPTION

Catcher Gus Rodney Mancuso, who was Jimmy Wilson's only understudy until the Cardinals signed Earl Smith, has been released to the Minneapolis club of the American Association, Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager, announced today. Mancuso will be subject to recall on a five-day notice, according to the terms of agreement with Minneapolis.
Mancuso's departure will leave the Cardinals with 25 players, the limit allowed by the league.

INDIANAPOLIS STAR LIKELY TO REPLACE WRIGHT AT PITTSBURG

By the Associated Press.
MILWAUKEE, July 13.—Harold (Rabbit) Warster, Indianapolis American Association team shortstop, and rated as one of the "finds" of the year, will probably go to the Pittsburgh National League Club in August. Bruno Betzel, manager of the Indians, said yesterday. The Pirates have an option on Warster which expires August 20. Betzel said, and probably will exercise it to replace Henry Wright. The Indianapolis team is here for a series with the Brewers.

SWIMMER IS FIRST ATHLETE SENT BY PANAMA TO OLYMPICS

PANAMA CITY, Panama, July 12.—Adrian Gordon Jr., champion swimmer of the Republic of Panama, now on his way to Amsterdam, is the first Panamanian ever to enter the Olympic games.
He expects to compete in the 100, 220 and 440 yard events. At the close of the games he intends to give swimming exhibitions in England, France and the United States.

Two races will be held by the St. Louis Rowing Club in front of its club house Sunday afternoon. The first will be a mile and a half junior barge event for the Leaning Trophy; and the second will be an open four at the same distance for the Hulse trophy. The first race starts at 2 o'clock.

CUMMINGS' 4-BAGGER KNOCKS SHERDEL OUT

By W. J. McGoogan
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.
SPORTSMAN'S PARK, July 13.—The Cardinals made it three out of four in their series with the New York Giants, winning the final game this afternoon.
The score was 11 to 6.
Sherdel was not at his best. The Giants hit him hard in the early innings and drove him out of the box in the fifth inning, when Pinch-Hitter Cummings knocked a home run with the bases loaded.
Jimmy Wilson, the Cards' catcher, was injured in the second inning when Aldridge swung his bat back too far and hit the catcher in the head. After a moment's rest, Wilson resumed his position.
Tomorrow the Brooklyn Dodgers call for a four-game series and McKee plans to use Grover Cleveland Alexander in the opening contest.

NEW YORK CLUB TO SEND FIVE ATHLETIC STARS TO AMSTERDAM

WILL ATTEMPT TO HAVE STARS INCLUDED ON OLYMPIC TEAM

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 13.—The New York Athletic Club has decided to send an Olympic team of its own to Europe as a protest against the decision of the American Olympic selections committee. Five members of the winged foot organization who failed for various reasons to qualify for the team will be sent abroad at the expense of the club in an effort to have them included in the team.

The five men are Ronald Locke, former University of Nebraska sprinter star, Western Union crack hurdler from Alabama, Poly, Matt McGrath, veteran hammer thrower, Falt, Elkins, Indian decathlon star who was injured during the tryouts at Philadelphia and was unable to compete the ten events, and Norton Jackson, a wrestler.

The fight for places on the team will be under the supervision of Matthew Halpin, chairman of the winged foot athletic committee. In addition to the protest against what he claims were improper choices by the selections committee, Halpin announced that he would decline to serve as an official at the Olympic games as a protest against what he claims were improper choices by the selections committee.

All of the five N. Y. A. C. athletes who will attempt to gain places on the team are well known performers who failed to make the grade in the tryouts. According to Halpin the committee's selections were unjust because these men are better than the ones chosen.

Stick to Trial Results.
In making the selections, the committee provided for such protests by adhering rigidly to the results of the trials. In addition to the five New Yorkers several other stars were left off the team for similar reasons, notably Tony Plank, decathlon star, Ross Nichols, Stanford University hurdling ace, and Orval Martin of Purdue who finished fourth in the 100 meters but was displaced by Lloyd Hahn.

There is little possibility that the journey to Amsterdam sponsored by the New York A. C. will have the desired effect. It is generally believed by observers that the choices of the Olympic selections committee were final and would not be changed.

If the club fails in its attempt to have these men included in the team, they will be entered in several international events which follow the Olympic games in an effort to show that their performances are superior to those of the members of the team.

PADDOCK CASE IS CLOSED INCIDENT, SAYS M'ARTHUR

BY ALAN J. GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

STEAMSHIP PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, EN ROUTE TO AMSTERDAM, July 13.—Apparently the last word on the Paddock case so far as the Olympic committee is concerned, has been pronounced by Major-General Douglas MacArthur, president of the committee, in a statement issued by Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, president of the National Collegiate, upholding the attack on the famous sprinter's amateur status.

After a unanimous committee vote sustaining Paddock's standing, MacArthur radioed the following reply to Gen. Pierce: "Your telegram apparently based upon complete misunderstanding on your part of my position and action. I suggest you obtain from the press the only statement which was given out in reference to the resignation of George W. Wightman of Boston, from the Olympic committee; as you will see, none of the issues which were discussed in your wire were involved.

"As far as Paddock is concerned or any other athlete appearing in the Olympic team, the committee would not hesitate to act had any evidence been submitted prejudicial to him. The selection committee whose action is in no sense juridical, and before whom Paddock did not appear, merely recommended to me that Paddock be declared ineligible and that his status was doubtful and should be investigated before he was selected.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, radioed good wishes for the success of the American Olympic team, Gen. MacArthur replying on behalf of the squad.

was asked which one he liked best. "Well," said the Babe, "I can't see either one of them blindfolded, or with a telescope. I think I'll stick to the old pipe."

TOM IMPRESSES WITH FINE WORK IN HIS FIRST NIGHT PRACTICE

By the Associated Press.

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 13.—Most of Tom Heene's preparations for his "shot at the heavyweight title on July 26 are based on the development of his south-paw punching apparatus.

His right hand, Heene is pretty well satisfied with. He has used it effectively for years shooting jolting straight punches under the heart. These body punches have been his best offensive equipment.

Now he's developing his left hand so that it won't feel slighted when he takes it along with his right into the Yankee Stadium ring in two weeks. Heene has used his left hand to a great extent, of course, in all of his fights in the country but there's been little or no dynamite in it. Persistent practice in sparring matches here are beginning to show results.

The challenger now has a left hook that calls for some respect from the critics as well as his sparring mates.

With thunder rolling and heavy storm clouds overhead, Heene went through his first night workout last night and made such a good showing that the critics were taken somewhat aback.

The New Zealander cuffed around Ralph Smith—six feet five and weighing 250 pounds—for two rounds and repeated the same dosage for the benefit of Paul Swiderski, the Syracuse 155-pounder.

Smith, a lumbering mountain of a man, was a mark for Heene's hooks and jabs. The challenger's left played a steady tune on Smith's face while his right was busy pumping in jolting punches to the body. Swiderski was a bit tougher but Heene plunged in head foremost, as is his custom, and try as he could the New Yorker could not evade those lefts and rights that the New Zealander shot at him from all angles.

Heene plans to take a rest today, traveling to Long Branch to watch and possibly second his sparring partner, Phil Mercurio, in the latter's match with Battling Levinsky, once American lightweight champion.

Raymond Hoagland, on whose estate Heene is training, has offered to bet $10,000 at the prevailing odds of 1 to 3 on Heene in his match with the champion.

Preliminary Boxers Sign

GEORGE STALLINGS' CONDITION SERIOUS

By the Associated Press.

Macon, Ga., July 13.—George Stallings, whose exploits as pilot of the pennant-winning Boston Braves in 1914 won for him the title of "Miracle Man," today lay in the hospital on the border line of life.

The 42-year-old owner of the Montreal club of the International League, who was brought here recently, following a heart attack at his summer home at Haddock, Ga., received extreme attention yesterday after physicians gave up all hope of saving his life.

Gray and Crowder Have Gained Over Half of Browns' Victories This Year

ALVIN CROWDER.
By Herman Wecke.

That the men behind the gun with the St. Louis club of the American League knew what they were about when they obtained Sam Gray and Alvin Crowder for the 1928 campaign.

These two twirlers have been the aces of Dan Howley's staff and right now own as good a record as any pair of twirlers, excepting those of the league-leading Yankees.

Between them the two right-handers have put together a total of 22 victories, or more than half of those gained by the Browns this season. And they have dropped but seven decisions. This means that they have a winning percentage of .759, whereas the figure for the club is just a little better than .500.

Crowder One of Leaders.

Gen. Crowder is one of the leading pitchers in the American League with a record of 10 victories and one defeat. Gray also owns a fine standard, one which shows 12 conquests against six defeats. Crowder, in compiling his record, has hurled nine complete games, while Gray has gone the route on 10 occasions.

Gray started on his successful campaign right at the beginning and he has had more than his share of success. Recently he has been on the shelf because of an attack of influenza and tonsillitis, but is again ready to take his regular turn on the hill.

Crowder, however, got off to a slow start. In fact, it was not until May 20 that he heavily started his pitch baseball for the men of Howley. Up to that time, he had a record of 1-1. Since then, however, he has put over nine successive victories, in a majority of which he has gone the full distance.

Gray to date has twirled 149 1-3 innings and in that time the enemy has scored a total of 69 runs, an average of 4.14 each nine rounds. The hits off him number 147. Crowder, in compiling his fine mark, has worked in 114 1-3 innings and has been scored upon 55 times, or 4.41 each nine frames. He has given 107 hits.

The Browns obtained Crowder from Washington last summer in a trade which sent the veteran Tom Zachary to the Senators. For Gray, the local team gave up Bing Miller, a hard-hitting outfielder.

SAM GRAY.

But they have been worth every bit of it, inasmuch as today they are the only members of the Browne hurling staff who are over the .500 mark for the campaign. Without Gray and Crowder, it is not likely that the Browns today would be running along in third place in the American League pennant struggle.

How Crowder Lost His Only Contest

The only defeat for Alvin Crowder this season on April 28, game when league officials overruled the score of St. Louis. Going into the eighth inning, Crowder was leading 6 to 3. The Sox scored five runs, but only the tying run was placed on the bases by Crowder, and

Milk and Egg Diet, Light Training And No Massage for Cuban Athletes

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Cuba, July 13.—Attainment of athletic success in the tropics is the exact reverse of that in colder climates to the north. It has been revealed by James H. Kendrigan, noted American coach, now heading the athletic department of the University of Havana.

If any success it to be attained in the field of sports in Cuba it is to be attained, not through the collegiate custom of the United States of heavy training and heavy, nourishing foods, but through light training and exceptionally light foods. Kendrigan explains. As in direct contradistinction to accepted coaching standards of the north, Kendrigan has demonstrated the feasibility of this plan in Cuba, for he has developed "Pepe" Berriena, track star and contender in the Olympic, who recently shattered records of Pa'cock and Ed-diman.

Not only has Kendrigan developed Barrientos, but of the 54 men on the junior track team of the

JIMMY BRONSON QUILTS TUNNEY'S TRAINING CAMP

By the Associated Press.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 13.—Friday the thirteenth, was a holiday in Speculator where Gene Tunney is training to defend his heavyweight title against Tom Heene, the rugged New Zealander, on July 26 at the Yankee Stadium.

The day's rest, Tunney's handlers believe, will keep the champion, who weighs 166½, almost his fighting weight, from reaching the peak of condition too early. The day of idleness, it was explained, would put about five pounds on him, a margin he will find useful during the 13 days which are yet to come before he defends his crown.

Tunney postponed his 10-round session with sparring partners and punching bags until tomorrow. The occasion will be taken a brisk workout on Sunday while Tex Rickard is here to witness the signing of the New York Boxing Commission contract for the coming battle. The occasion will be Rickard's first visit to this resort where the champion considers one of the country's most beautiful spots.

Tunney has yet to work out on the Sabbath during the present training campaign but like a gracious host, he is willing to go to any extreme to entertain Rickard, his guest.

Bronson Quits Camp.

Addison Warren, the former University of North Carolina student, who has been on Tunney's staff of sparring partners, quit the camp with Jimmy Bronson, his manager, when they learned that the New York Boxing Commission had ruled that no sparring partners would be permitted on the Tunney-Heene card.

Harold Mays and Billy Vidabeck, Tunney's other sparring partners, were also slated to battle opponents never named on the night of July 26, but they intend to remain here with the champion. Therefore they will be mere spectators, instead of co-actors, in the Tunney-Heene drama.

Challenger Heene Says That He Likes Training Workouts in Open Air

By Tom Heene.

As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 13.—Outside of the newspapermen here at camp there aren't many veterans of the war in our party. I was a kid when I joined up with the New Zealand outfit, but my sparring partners were just a shade too young to get into the big scrap.

John Mortimer, who brought me out of England, saw something of the troops. He was at Southampton, where there were often 40,000 and 50,000 soldiers at a time. John's reputation in the boxing game was known all over England, so he was asked to put on boxing in the outside shows for the boys. And what a job he made of it. A lot of the American boxers appeared in Southampton—Eddie McGorry, Augie Ratner and others.

My brothers, who are here with me now—and I guess it's something of a record for three men to travel 11,000 miles to see a fight—were in the war. Jack boxed at Southampton for Mortimer. He was a great middleweight. If he'd stuck to the game he might have been a world's champion. Arthur and Pat

GIRL WANTS PLACE IN COACHES' SCHOOL

LAKELAND, Fla., July 13.—The summer training school for football coaches at South Florida College, Lakeland, Fla., will be a co-educational affair, if authorities heed the plea of Miss Grace Murrell, a member of the Lakeland High School faculty.

Miss Murrell plans to coach the Lakeland High School football team this fall, so she has applied for admission to Coach Wallace Wade's training course.

Jess Burbage, registrar, says he has no reason to refuse Miss Murrell admittance in the school except that "it would cramp the style of the men to have a woman around."

Herbst and Doxey Sign for Fight On Amateur Card

Joe Herbst of the Flor-Olympian Club and Frank Doxey of the Motorbus Club have signed for a special bout on the Motorbus card next Thursday night.

In the recent junior championship tournament, Herbst won his preliminary bout with Benny Humphrey, unattached, on a technical knockout in the first round, and attached the flyweight title by winning the flyweight title by winning (Pascue) Terry. Frank Doxey has fought only three times, but won all three bouts. One of his winnings was from Joe Bokor of the South Broadway club. Bokor, who is known as a fast boxer, had not lost a decision until he lost to Doxey.

Frank Kelly, a newcomer in the local amateur middleweight ranks, is listed among the entries in the preliminary events. Kelly, it will be recalled, was entered in the National A. A. U. tourney at Boston, but lost to Frank Powers, at that time with the South Broadway club.

Lencho Wins on Foul.

PORT THOMAS, Ky., July 13.—Harry McCarthy, Cincinnati, won on a foul from Kid Lencho, Indianapolis, in the eighth round of an evenly fought 10-round bout last night.

The Best CIGAR 10c Can Buy MILD

Having a supply of Orlando cigars always handy is a habit few men who have enjoyed Orlando could be persuaded to break. For more than twenty years the habit of buying Orlando by the box has been growing with men of discrimination—because they find in Orlando a quality and a value that are absolutely unequalled. Smoke Orlando!

WEATHER, PLUS YANKS, CRIMPED A. L. FLAG RACE

—PRESIDENT BARNARD

CHICAGO, July 12.—A bigger and better American League in 1929 is the prediction of President J. S. Barnard.

By bigger he means more fans will click the turnstiles daily, and by better an evenly balanced circuit that will assure a hot pennant race.

In the present New York Yankees Barnard sees the team that augurs well for the future success of the league. The Yankee management is furnishing a high mark at which other club owners are shooting by acquiring promising young ballplayers.

These young diamond stars should be going at top speed within another two years, with the result that the league will be more evenly balanced. At least, that is the way the league's chief executive sizes up the situation.

Admits Yanks Hurt Flag Race. While admitting the Yankees have hurt the league, President Barnard contends that the weather has done even more damage.

"The American League looked forward to a more promising season," said the president. "Stars standing and with perfect harmony existing between the club owners and management, we were predicting a successful year from both fans and players' standpoints. But the cold, damp weather slowed up the training season; many players were sick as the result and the bad weather cut decidedly into the early attendance."

However, Barnard is not worried about the future. Every club is built solid financially and can stand to take a loss in view of building up for the future, he said. He scorns the idea that something drastic will have to be done in Chicago and Detroit to save two clubs from utter ruin. Conditions in each place, he declared, will work out all right as better young players become available.

CATCHES FIRST GAME OF DOUBLE-HEADER

AND PITCHES SECOND

RALEIGH, N. C., July 12.—Olin Peritt of the Raleigh baseball club of the Piedmont League, caught all honors in his circuit for "iron-man" performance. He recently pitched his team to a 3-to-2 victory in a morning game and in the afternoon of the same day, in spite of the torrid temperature that caused one of his teammates to collapse, again took the mound to win a 7-to-4 verdict. A few days previously Peritt caught the first game of a double-header and then pitched his team to a win in the nightcap affair. Peritt has held berths with various clubs in the South Atlantic, Virginia and Piedmont leagues. He is rated a good catcher, a capable infielder, an excellent pitcher and a satisfactory outfielder.

Giants Buy Southpaw.

BEAUMONT, Tex., July 12.—Carl Hubbell, southpaw, was sold yesterday by the Beaumont Texas League club to the New York Giants. Hubbell will leave Saturday for Chicago to join McGraw's team. The sale price was not announced but it is understood to be in the neighborhood of $25,000. The deal brings pitcher Johnson, a southpaw, to the Exporters at once and two Class A players to be delivered next spring.

Fight Show Postponed.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The boxing show at the Queensboro Athletic Club featuring a bout between O. Phil Kaplan and Jack McVey, scheduled for last night, was postponed until next Tuesday on account of rain.

U. S. ISSUES LEAD BOND MARKET LIST ON DOWNTURN

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 13.—The bond market continued under pressure today, led by U. S. Government obligations, seeking lower levels. Easy money rates appeared to affect the market only late in the day, when a few widely scattered issues regained their losses.
The decline carried the Associated Press combined average price for 10 first grade rails, second grade rails, public utilities and industrial bonds to a new low level of 97.07, as against 97.73 a week ago and 97.18 a year ago.
Liquidity appeared to be due largely to institutional selling, which by midday had reduced the market for U. S. Government bonds to a level of 97.07, as against 97.73 a week ago and 97.18 a year ago.
The industrial group was neglected, a few issues trading showing extreme narrowness. Standard Oil of New Jersey was a point and a half below its previous level, as against 97.73 a week ago and 97.18 a year ago.
Utilities were irregular. The New York Edison closed fractionally higher after recovering a loss of 3 points. American Electric Power was a point and a half below its previous level, as against 97.73 a week ago and 97.18 a year ago.
Every U. S. Government issue on the list reached a new low for the year, with the Treasury fourth 4 1/2's a bit firmer at 97.07, but failed to rise above the previous low.

CURB PRICE TREND LACKS UNIFORMITY

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 13.—Price movements in today's curb market lacked uniformity, but after an opening sinking sold the general trend was towards higher levels. Pools were at work in several issues, a few of which were lifted to new high levels for the year. Pears that the recent high of 100.00 was not a realistic level, an extensive liquidation of some curb securities was in progress, and a few of which were lifted to new high levels for the year. Pears that the recent high of 100.00 was not a realistic level, an extensive liquidation of some curb securities was in progress, and a few of which were lifted to new high levels for the year.
Oils gave one of the most impressive demonstrations of group strength, having closed higher than they opened. Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania ran up 3 points, having had been at 84.00, and was recorded by the Associated Press as 87.00. Vacuum was up 1 point, having been at 84.00, and was recorded by the Associated Press as 85.00.
Snatch & General, a subsidiary of Eastern Marine, established a new high of 100.00, having been at 99.00, and was recorded by the Associated Press as 100.00.

WY PARRIES REED BLOW AT HIM WITH HARMONY APPEAL

Declares He Stands on Democratic Platform, Which Is "Broad Enough for Both Wets and Drys."

REFUSES TO QUARREL AND SO BEAT TICKET

Candidate, Speaking at St.
Joseph, Declines to Engage in Controversy That Spells Defeat.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 13.—Refusing to enter into any personal controversy with Senator Reed, Charles M. Hay of St. Louis, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate, declared here last night that he stood squarely on the Houston platform and refused "to bolt the ticket because a wet is on it, or to be denied a place thereon because I am a dry."
In a statement in St. Louis last Tuesday attacking Hay, Reed said Hay's nomination would be a rebuke to the party, and that he would not support it. Hay, in reply, declared that he stood squarely on the Houston platform and refused "to bolt the ticket because a wet is on it, or to be denied a place thereon because I am a dry."
The Houston convention wrote a great platform," Hay declared in reply to Reed's charge that a wet and dry on the same ticket would split the party. "They called upon all of us to enlist in the fight for honest government, fair relief, the restoration of the government to the people, the promotion of peace and the limitation of armaments, and for the enforcement of the laws of the land."
"They refused to divide our forces in the fight for these things by committing the party to any specific proposal relative to prohibition. They wrote a platform broad enough for both wets and dries to stand upon. They gave further evidence of their purpose to enlist both wets and dries in the fight for farm relief, honesty in government and the limitation of armaments, and for the enforcement of the laws of the land."
"Cites Reed's Inconsistency."
"They did, in fact, just what Senator Reed, in his campaign for the presidency, agreed to do," Hay declared. "He committed the party to those policies in which we agree and refused to commit it on those policies on which there is wide disagreement. It is therefore, regrettable, indeed, that he who told the country that he would support the ticket, should have done so on the basis of the only hope of unity of action lay in writing a platform on which both wets and dries could stand, should now, after the convention, tell us that only a wet is entitled to stand on it."
"It is also regrettable that he who told us that there was something in this campaign 'bigger than a drink of whiskey and a schooner of beer,' should now tell us that only those who are prepared to go out and try to convert the people to the support of the ticket, should have done so on the basis of the only hope of unity of action lay in writing a platform on which both wets and dries could stand, should now, after the convention, tell us that only a wet is entitled to stand on it."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

ST. LOUIS, FRIDAY, JULY 13, 1928.

Globe-Girdlers Slept Only 15 Hours in Six Days

Mears and Collier Were Right on Schedule
When They Boarded Liner for Trip Across Pacific to U. S.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
YOKOHAMA, July 13.—We boarded the Empress of Russia yesterday for the eastward trip across the Pacific to the United States, right on our schedule. The new record is in our grasp, and only the worst of luck can snatch it from us.
We were up yesterday after only four hours sleep, bringing our total of sleep to 15 hours for the six days since we left Cherbourg in our plane, the "City of New York."
Immediately after rising, we left Tokyo for Yokohama, speeding by automobile so that Capt. Collier could supervise personally the loading of our plane aboard the Empress of Russia.
Collier and the skipper of the liner together got the aircraft safely on the stern of the ship, and then we had a whirlwind round of shopping for shorts, white trousers and other necessities of the voyage.
The Empress of Russia was prepared to wait three hours for us if necessary, but the delay was not needed.
Collier and I still are a little shaky from our rather terrifying experience of flying through the inky blackness trying to locate an aldrone.
Subsequently, we attended a Gelsba party at which Collier ranked ace high by reason of his sleep and intended to get plenty of it during the next nine days before we reach the American Pacific coast.

SIR MAX BONN SAYS WIFE LOVED ANOTHER

Former New Yorker Testifies in Suit for Divorce in London.

(Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Publishing Co., (The New York World and Post-Dispatch).
LONDON, July 13.—Sir Max Bonn, banker, formerly of New York, took the stand here yesterday to testify in Lady Bonn's suit for divorce.
He described how their marriage went awry after seven happy years.
Last summer, he said, he and his wife planned to spend their holiday together, but so many others joined the party that he decided not to go. Later, he went on, he confessed to him that she and Sir Ronald Waterhouse, principal private secretary of Bonar Law, MacDonald, and until recently Baldwin, had fallen in love. Waterhouse is named as co-respondent in Bonn's counter suit.
A marked change in his wife's attitude toward him, Bonn declared, came after he had returned from a trip to America last year, and in October he said Lady Bonn was annoyed when he remarked: "I wonder what Mr. Hanbury (another co-respondent) did with his week-ends before he met the Bonn family."
Later, Bonn continued, when they were talking about a divorce, Lady Bonn grew angry and said she cared to show him that she was a woman who could live with a man who consented to things and complained about them afterward. He denied her charges of misconduct.

ALBANIAN PLOTTERS EXECUTED

Three Had Been Convicted of Conspiracy to Kill President.
By the Associated Press.
TIRANA, Albania, July 13.—Three men convicted of plotting to assassinate President Ahmed Zogu were executed this morning.
The men were arrested on July 5. Police said they planned to ambush the President as he traveled from Tirana to Kevirja by automobile. Their design was learned and the trip abandoned. Shortly afterward a time bomb was discovered in Ahmed Zogu's villa at Durazzo, which he had intended to visit.

WARNS AGAINST FINANCIAL CRASH

Stock Dealers Must Call Halt in Speculations to Permit Liquidation of Debts, Chicagoan Asserts

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 13.—A warning that the nation's credit has been expanded almost to the maximum and that a day of reckoning must come was sounded last night by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago and former president of the American Bankers' Association, speaking to members of the newly formed Chicago Curb Market Association.
"The present situation of tight money," said Traylor, "is not an artificial one—it is fully justified by economic law. It will continue as long as stock exchange securities continue to be dealt in as actively as they now are and continue to use the credit they have been using recently."
"This has been increasing at more than $500,000,000 a year for the last two and one-half years, while the Federal Reserve ration has been moving down and the borrowing of member banks has been going up. In the last year the United States has lost $500,000,000 in free gold."

Trying to Hold Control

Bankers, Traylor said, are determined, if possible, not to let the situation get out of hand, which would involve a crash such as occurred in farm lands in 1920 and Florida real estate in 1925. Dealers in stocks and bonds, he declared, must call a halt in speculative activity to permit liquidation of security credit.
"The nation has been mistaking the richness of credit for the richness of capital," Traylor stated. "The credit has been expanded. It now totals more than $5,000,000,000. This credit must be paid. A day of reckoning must come."
"There is plenty of credit for business on sane lines, but security credit must be curtailed."

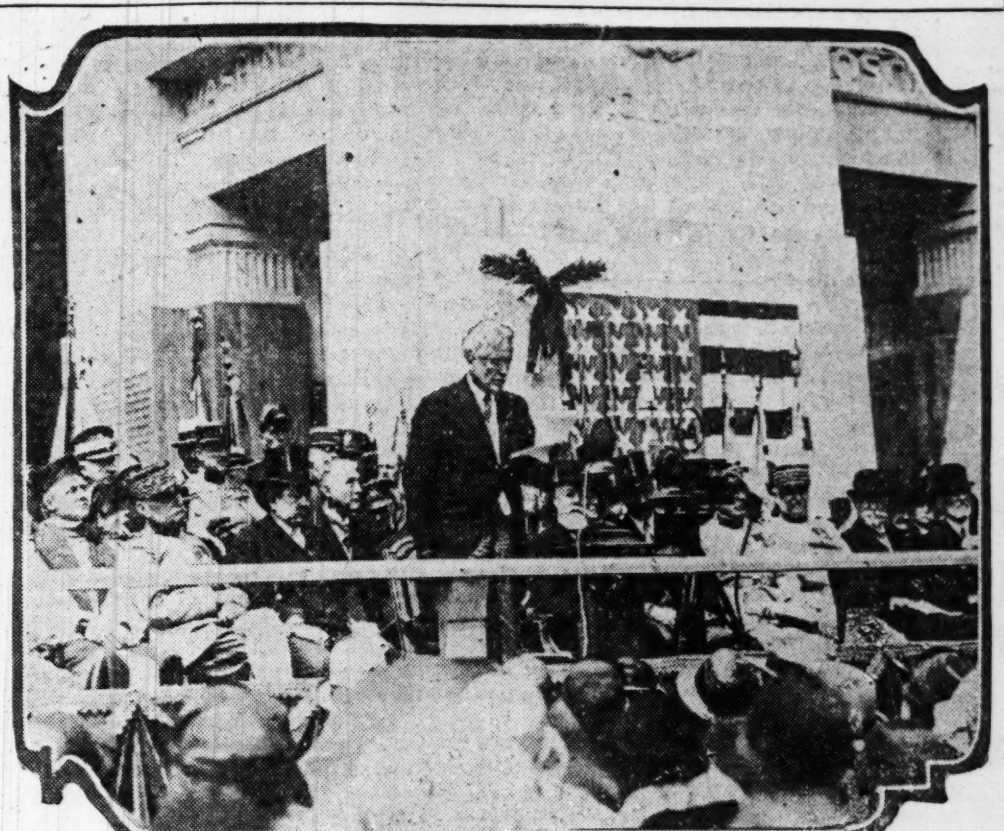

Audience Visibly Affected

The banker's remarks, coming after he had finished his set address, visibly affected those who listened. Some of the leaders of the new association even suggested postponing the opening of the market, organized to deal in unlimited stocks and bonds. The opening is set for tomorrow.
In conversation after his speech, Traylor intimated that a 5 1/2 per cent Federal Reserve discount rate appeared as a likelihood for some time. He declared the bond market was more responsible for the latest expansion in security credit than the stock market, as recent bond issues have been underwritten and had not been sold thereby throwing them back on the banks in large volume.

PERU AGREES TO RESUME RELATIONS WITH CHILE

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 13.—The Peruvian note approving Secretary of State Kellogg's proposal for restoration of diplomatic relations between Peru and Chile reached the State Department today, virtually concluding long negotiations. The plan for resumption of diplomatic relations is a step toward solution of the Tacna-Arica dispute which caused a break in relations more than 20 years ago. Kellogg hopes that with the restoration of these relations Chile and Peru will be able to work out between themselves a satisfactory formula as to the ultimate sovereignty of Tacna-Arica.
Chilean acceptance of this proposal was placed in Kellogg's hands this week by the Chilean Ambassador.

GERMANY ACCEPTS ANTI-WAR PLAN; NO RESERVATIONS

First Note of Assent to Kellogg Proposals Received in Washington
From Berlin Government

13 OTHER NATIONS HAVE YET TO REPLY

French Answer Probably Will Be Delivered to U.
S. Ambassador Herrick in Paris Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 13.—Germany's unqualified acceptance of the devised draft of the American multilateral treaty for the renunciation of war was communicated to Secretary Kellogg yesterday in a brief note signed by Acting Foreign Minister Schubert in Berlin. It announces Germany's readiness to sign the pact in the form in which it was submitted to 14 countries by Kellogg, June 23. The German acceptance is the first to be received. Kellogg is awaiting answers from the other 13 nations, including Great Britain and France, who would be the original signatories of the anti-war pact under the American program which developed from the exchanges with the Paris Government during the last 12 months. Germany likewise was the first of the four nations originally invited into the negotiations to signify her readiness to conclude a pact in accordance with the United States' proposal.
Contents of Note.
"The German Government has examined with the greatest care the contents of the note (June 23), and the revised draft of the pact which was enclosed," the reply stated. "The Government is pleased that the standpoint of the Government of the United States of America as set forth in the note corresponds with the fundamental German conception as it was communicated in the note of April 27, 1928 (the original proposal). The German Government has agreed to the changes in the preamble of the draft of the pact."
"It is therefore pleased to state that it takes cognizance of the statements made by the Government of the United States of America contained in your excellency's note of June 23, that it agrees to the interpretation which is given therein to the provisions of the proposed pact and that it is accordingly ready to sign this pact in the form now proposed." The German reference is to Kellogg's proposal.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

A WILD-EYED POLICE DRIVER.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
On July 10 someone caused a false alarm at the Securities National Bank on Eighth street, just north of Olive street. The detectives came very promptly and they are to be complimented upon their efficiency, but a large crowd gathered around the bank, a stream of pedestrian traffic was crossing Olive streets, and a wild-eyed driver of the police car received a signal from the occupants to leave there and did he? He certainly did. He was doing 50 miles an hour at least when he hit into the crowd at Olive street, missed an old lady by a slight edge, caused her to be ill, and continued south on Eighth street faster than anyone but an insane man would drive. There was no sense in that. He endangered the lives of many, and caused trouble to a few.

Why do we insist upon an ordinary taxpayer being so careful in driving and permit our public servants to endanger our lives. The Post-Dispatch usually champions the cause of the people. Can't you get a matter like this corrected? It should be, for it was brought about by an overgrown kid driver that was showing off.

POLICE OFFICER.

I. T. S. and the City.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Is there not a parallel between the I. T. S. franchise case and the objection to continuing commission row on Third street.

The I. T. S. could locate its new terminal adjacent to north side of Cass avenue without loss to itself account difference in value of land. City would be much favored in future by escaping undesirable concentration of heavy traffic so near new plaza and expanding retail area. Railway would handle same volume business. City ought to refuse permit for buildings.

A. B. C.

The Public Service Commission.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
As a result of the present investigation of the utilities throughout the country and the illuminating investigation given by J. B. Sheridan, it would not be amiss to turn the spotlight upon the Public Service Commission of our own State.

A casual perusal of recent decisions made by the Public Service Commission would be instructive, as also would reference to the Blue Book be informative to the reader, for he would learn therefrom what an enormous expense to the State is the maintenance of this organization. The question might be asked—does it justify its existence?

The establishment of the physical valuation of utilities is one of the important factors in regulation of rates, the assessment on such valuation is made by the State Tax Commission—in other states it has been found unnecessary to maintain a separate commission.

Every representative in the State of Missouri who represents his district in the Legislature this winter in Jefferson City should consider the question, "Why the Public Service Commission?"

Rolla, Mo. D. M.

Avoid Another Delmar Crossing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In the matter of the I. T. S. 50-year franchise and the Cass avenue grade crossing, would suggest to the city engineers to look up a certain subway station in Brooklyn, N. Y., where at least three lines are built, one on top of the other, and an escalator is required to take the passengers up and down. Why can't the subway be lowered below the sewer at Cass avenue, and continue at that level to the proposed underground station or terminal at Twelfth and Washington?

I wonder if any such sewer was in the way of the Hudson tubes and the Holland tunnel. If you can't go over, get under and avoid another Delmar crossing in the heart of a crowded district.

NOT FOR ME.

More Drivers Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
As a taxpayer of this metropolitan city, I don't see why the city can't employ a few more drivers and get more garbage trucks, so the poor men don't have to go around on Sundays to collect garbage without extra pay.

MRS. CLARA LARSON.

Traffic Signals in Maplewood.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The writer would like to compliment the officials of Maplewood for their foresight in regard to traffic signals, which they have installed in the streets. It so happens that one of the signals has been installed near the writer's place of business, and I have noticed that this safety device stops all automobiles entering Manchester avenue. Before this signal was placed on this street I witnessed several bad accidents.

I certainly take my hat off to the officials for this step toward the safety of the people on the streets in Maplewood.

A MERCHANT.

MR. SIDENER'S WEAK DEFENSE.

Circuit Attorney Sidener's defense against the charges that have been made concerning the administration of his office is that he has been exonerated by five grand juries which investigated his office, and that he had sent 390 prisoners to Jefferson City during his second term and had obtained 524 convictions out of 572 cases in the last three months.

The defense does not mean much. His exoneration by five grand juries simply means that in the cases they investigated they did not find sufficient evidence upon which to indict or to reprimand him. In the last grand jury investigation, one of Mr. Sidener's assistants directed the inquiry. The fact that Mr. Sidener's office has obtained a large number of convictions does not prove that he did not fail to obtain convictions in cases in which convictions should have been obtained, and did not nolle prosequi in cases in which the defendants should have been tried.

There are certain specific cases in which Mr. Sidener has not justified or reasonably explained his failure to obtain justice. We pass by cases mentioned by Mr. Freund, former Police Commissioner, in which he charges that action by the Circuit Attorney's office defeated the ends of justice. We mention the Rutherford case, in which Rutherford, after the brutal killing of a bellboy without provocation, was let off with a $500 fine, at the instance of the Circuit Attorney's office. This case, in which thousands of dollars were used to save Rutherford from punishment that fitted his crime, is damning evidence that Mr. Sidener is unfit for his office.

There is the Motlow case, where Motlow, in a drunken fit, killed an unoffending Pullman conductor, and was acquitted.

It is the notable cases in which Circuit Attorney Sidener has failed by which his conduct of his office must be judged.

The five grand jury investigations indicate a lack of confidence in Mr. Sidener as Circuit Attorney. The truth is the public, by reason of certain conspicuous failures of justice, has lost confidence in Mr. Sidener's capacity to conduct his office. There have been scandalous incidents in connection with his administration which impair public confidence.

In the present prevalence of murderous gangs, banditry and crimes of all sorts, the public needs for its protection law enforcement officers of unquestioned integrity, capacity and courage. The voters of both parties should nominate men of that type, so that, no matter what the result of the election, law enforcement will be in good hands. There are candidates in the Republican list who give promise of a better administration than that of Mr. Sidener. In the Democratic list there is a man of exceptional capacity, character and proven fitness. That is former Judge Franklin Miller.

A $12,000,000 INCONGRUITY.

In a lull between the usual squabbles at Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Education, the secretary-treasurer made his report of the fiscal year's receipts and expenditures. The receipts, he said, were $12,353,000. A tidy sum, but not quite enough, as it had been found necessary to draw upon the $5,500,000 surplus for an additional $10,000 to pay the bills.

Public School education in St. Louis, it appears from this report, is more than a $12,000,000 affair, on the basis of its annual turnover. The vast income is derived from taxes, which are cheerfully paid because of the almost universal feeling that nothing is too good, in buildings, equipment and instruction, for the children. There has been no complaint of the lavish expenditures or suggestions that they be curtailed.

There cannot help being a widespread conviction, however, that there is something curiously incongruous between this $12,000,000 business and the exhibitions of pettishness that are given at almost every meeting of the board that directs it. The people who put up the money and select representatives to administer it have a right to expect that they will not only bring to the administration the best of their ability but that they will report themselves with a dignity in keeping with the importance of the positions that they hold. Instead, there is rarely a meeting of the board that is not marred by unseemly bickerings.

Differences of opinion there are bound to be, but it takes more than differences of opinion to justify the exhibitions that are constantly being given. The explanation seems to lie in the caliber of the persons who, with exceptions, are elected to the Board of Education. Greater care at election time is a remedy that suggests itself. It is worth trying.

RADIO AND MOVIES IN POLITICS.

It was an opportune warning which Mayor Walker of New York delivered to the movie magnates against permitting the films to be used for partisan purposes in the coming presidential campaign. The fact that certain leaders of the industry have been engaging actively in Republican politics, and that the entire industry is under the supervision of Will Hays, former Chairman of the Republican National Committee and manager of Harding's campaign in 1920, provoked Mayor Walker's words on the subject.

Those words will be echoed throughout the country by fair-minded persons of both parties. If the movie men choose to maintain at their head a notorious character like Hays, whose lack of moral scruples was so vividly disclosed by the oil investigation, they can do so. If individual magnates choose, as citizens, to be active in partisan politics, they have a perfect right. But the public will not stand for the films to be used as a vehicle of Republican propaganda, and the penalty for such an attempt will not wait upon a Democratic victory, either. It will be swiftly and drastically imposed—at the box offices.

Incidentally, the same warning applies, with even greater force, to the radio. For several months a large company broadcasting from Washington has included in its regular programs a "political talk" by David Lawrence, a writer and editor whose devotion to the present administration had long been manifest. At the same time a station maintained in New York by the Socialist party protests that it is being denied the use of the air.

If the broadcasting companies know what is good for them, the campaign of 1928 will see no repetition of what happened to Senator LaFollette in 1924 at Des Moines, where a company denied him the use of the radio after according it a few days earlier to speakers for both the Republican and Democratic tickets.

The primary function of the movies and the radio is entertainment. No doubt they have a proper additional function reproducing great public events. But when they enter the field of partisan politics they are on perilous ground, and any failure to hew strictly to the line of fairness will be heavily punished. Mayor Walker's advice is sound.

NOT FOR SENATOR NORRIS.

Senator Norris cannot be persuaded to lead any political wild goose chase—he declines the nomination for President offered him by the Farmer-Labor party. As usual, Nebraska's "Grand Old Man" is right. There is not the slightest demand for a third party this year. While many of the declared aims of the Farmer-Labor party are meritorious, its following is negligible, and its hopes nil. Senator Norris, who has been called "the most valuable public servant in Congress," has much important work to accomplish—far too much to waste his time and talents leading a microscopic political party.

First, he wants to win his Muscle Shoals fight. After 10 years of battling for what began as a forlorn hope, he achieved the extraordinary feat at the last session of convincing both houses of Congress that he had the only practical and honorable solution of that perplexing problem. The bill was passed, and when last heard of, it had disappeared into the cavernous depths of Mr. Coolidge's veto pocket. But it takes more than a contemptuous pocket veto to discourage Norris, and the next President to whom the bill is submitted may be less indifferent to the fate of that great public property, and more indifferent to the wishes of the Power Trust.

In addition, Norris still has his fight to abolish the "lame duck" session of Congress. Four times his resolution has passed the Senate by huge majorities. Three times the Old Guard leaders in the House prevented a vote on it, and on the fourth occasion managed to muster slightly more than the one-third which was necessary to kill it—temporarily. That fight will be renewed in the next Congress, and with it Norris probably will submit his proposal for another needed reform—the abolition of the obsolete Electoral College, which now operates so effectively to bar independent candidates from presidential contests.

As a matter of fact, Senator Norris already has indicated what his conduct in this campaign may be. If Gov. Smith's stand on Muscle Shoals and the Power Trust is what Norris hopes it will be, he will support Smith. This would require extraordinary courage in the ordinary Republican Senator, but not in Norris, who went into Pennsylvania two years ago and campaigned for the Democratic candidate, William B. Wilson, against "Boss" Vard. Party lines are nothing in his life, and he has frequently urged that they be abolished. Since no man is so completely trusted by the farmers of the Northwest and by liberals everywhere, Norris' support for Al Smith would be a tremendous factor.

With such great aims to accomplish, and such vast issues to be decided, it is wholly in harmony with Norris' good sense that he declines to become absorbed in the toy campaign of a vanishing third party.

ALL FOR ART.

Some token of appreciation for her ingenuity in discovering a silver lining to a very dark cloud should go to Miss Mary Powell, educational director of the City Art Museum. Lecturing on the impressionist school of painters, she pointed out the ravishing beauties to be discovered in the pall of smoke and fog that customarily hovers over the city during the winter.

Miss Powell conceded that the smog may not be very conducive to health, but it is, she said, a constant stimulant to the artist. What the Smoke Abatement League thinks of this we can only conjecture. Perhaps, in the interest of art, when this zealous body has abolished all smoke, an occasional lone chimney can be assigned to belch out a black cloud or two so that Eads Bridge or the new Civil Court house will be effectively shrouded for the painter's purpose. In the past, however, it would seem that the city landscape should more readily have provided inspiration for a Dore bent on illustrating Dante than for a Whistler doing a Battersea Bridge.

"Right Kind of a Sparring Partner is a Great Help in Training," writes Tom Heeney, indicating that he is at least no match for Champion Tunney when it comes to deep and original thinking.

MORRIS M. TITTERINGTON.

While he remained little known to the general public, flyers everywhere knew and appreciated the contribution that Morris M. Titterington made to the science of aviation. They will feel most keenly his loss at so young an age that he might logically have been expected, considering his inventive genius, to have made further contributions.

His most important invention was the earth inductor compass, the comparatively simple device which enabled Lindbergh to fly to Paris without the aid of the older and more complex navigating instruments. It was Lindbergh who definitely proved the value of the earth inductor compass on a long flight. By means of a small dial on his instrument board he was able to fly with unerring accuracy over lonely ocean wastes.

At the time of the Lindbergh flight one navigation expert announced that the earth inductor compass might prove as invaluable to aviators as the ordinary magnetic compass had to mariners. Surely, if time bears out these words, Titterington's name will not be soon forgotten.

No doubt Raskob's specifications for the Democratic party during the coming campaign will include overhauling and speeding up the motor, fresh paint job and installation of shock absorbers.

WHAT BASEBALL ASKS OF US.

In no field is one's sense of loyalty and partisanship so greatly strained as in baseball. We used to root for Rogers Hornsby. Overnight, against our wishes, we found ourselves arrayed against him. The same is true of George Sisler, Lester Bell and Bob O'Farrell. But the cruellest flip-flop we have been asked to undertake is upon us. For several years the most honored traditions of Sportsman's Park has been to utter a loud and lusty boo whenever "Old" Smith came to bat for Pittsburgh. He was, beyond doubt, a hated and feared enemy. "Old" Smith has just joined the Cardinals, and henceforth we must cheer him. But it will be accomplished only by masterful repression of the loud and lusty boo of old.

LAST YEAR'S BEAU.

The South as a Battleground

Campaign of 1928 will be forever memorable if it cracks the political inertia of the South; to open campaign headquarters and to have Al Smith stump the South would help to redeem that section from its political abnormality, and possibly would produce leaders to carry on the intellectual tradition of the great Virginia statesmen.

From the New York World.

SENATOR ROBINSON'S warning that the South is a political battleground this year may sound alarming to partisan Democrats, but to anyone who takes a longer view of American politics it is really very good news. It is hardly necessary to say that we hope and believe that the South will vote the Democratic ticket this year. But we should much rather see the South go Democratic after a lively campaign than to have it go Democratic by inertia.

For the Democratic party has suffered, the Republican party has suffered, the South has suffered and the country has suffered from the fact that for 70 years an important section of the country comprising some 10 states has had an abnormal political system. An undisputed monopoly of political power, whether it exists in Pennsylvania and Vermont or in Georgia and Alabama, is inherently a bad thing, and anything which shakes that monopoly and tends to make communities feel that their opinions and their votes matter will turn out in the long run to be a blessing.

We are quite well aware that the forces in the South which are producing the revolt to which Senator Robinson alludes are not wholly reputable. Their chief, though not wholly avowed, motive is bigotry, and to a lesser degree honest prejudice and honest disagreement. But that does not trouble us. The existence of bigotry is a fact to be taken into account and there is no better way to cure it than to force it into the open. For bigotry flourishes best in stagnant places, in communities where the natural leaders of men, the intelligent, the spirited and the generous, are not aroused to action. There need not be the smallest doubt in anyone's mind that if the issues raised by the bigoted once seem important to the South, there will be plenty of men and women in the South who will regard it as their high privilege to strike down intolerance.

They will indicate the reputation of the South in the eyes of the world. Senator Robinson himself is a shining example of what the civilized South will do when it is convinced that its Hefflins are worth noticing.

To make the South a political battleground is to mobilize for the cause of liberty thousands of men and women who would ordinarily feel that they had no part to play in national affairs. Nothing could be better than that. The South was once the originator of an intellectual movement in the field of politics which for brilliancy and wisdom will stand critical comparison with anything in the history of modern popular government. The submergence of this leadership in the eyes of the world, Senator Robinson himself is a shining example of what the civilized South will do when it is convinced that its Hefflins are worth noticing.

The partisan Democrats who are disturbed at the prospect of a revival of political life in the South ought not to be disturbed too much. It will be a very good thing for the party if it follows Senator Robinson's advice, opens political headquarters in the South and sets out to earn the confidence of the Southern voters. We predict that if this is done, and that if Gov. Smith goes personally into the South and talks to it as he would to any other valuable and self-respecting section of the country, that the Democrats will not only get the 112 electoral votes of the South, but they will win also a tremendous accession of new, vigorous, competent political leaders.

They should not forget that there is a new generation in the South which is no longer dominated by the memories of reconstruction, a generation which is rebuilding the economic and social and educational structure of the South. This generation does not yet exercise its propinquity in politics because it has had no chance to exercise it. There has been no cause, no issue, no personality to which it can rally. It has accepted grudgingly the domination of sterile political machines like that owned by Senator Simmons and it has winced and suffered at the spectacle of bounders like Hefflin. To this new generation in the South, the Democratic party must address itself, and if it does that, win or lose in 1928, it will have made a historic contribution to American life.

SUMMER HORSES.

From the New York Herald-Tribune.
In summer the automobiles haven't it all their way. There are things which only wagons will do to the end of time, and, mobilized by the first warm weather, the same old creaking wagons, with horses which at least always look the same, appear on the side streets, year after year, up town and down, and the old cries float up to open windows—hot sounding as the fiddling of grasshoppers in hayfields. No matter how many airships dart above the city, the drowsy summer-time wagons go on just the same. The horses sleep with their forelegs in their eyes and the huckster chants: "Huckleberries! Blackberries! Noo green cawn! Wawtamelons!" The hokey-pokey horse is the sleepest of all. It takes some time to make your mother give up another nickel after you just had a cone last night—so if he hurried sales would be lost. A white horse almost always appears before red-headed geraniums. The junkman's horse, in addition, a bell, is likely to wear a single red rose tucked behind the left ear, like Carmendia. Sometimes the vegetable horse is shaded by a parasol, which is a cool hubbub leaf (it can't be cooked). These are not at all the sort of horse that you see in winter, drawing milk and ice wagons, fat, youthful. They are meant to convey fuchsias, begonias, cherries—big, black oxheart cherries—lettuce and purple cabbage.

SECOND THOUGHTS ARE BEST.

When wondering at blundering, the best close to surrendering.

I pray thee, pay but little heed to who the bolters say;
Their talking flout of walking out, they boast they make of balking out.
Some day they'll bolt the party, but we never see the day;
Then reading where they pleading say, their mute, forlorn, unheeding hair,
Accept, but with a grain of salt, the loud they loudly state;
Their scheming done, their dreaming say, they hail the most beaming sun,
They climb aboard the wagon of the party's candidate.

This parrying, this tarrying, the states could be carrying.
Are words with which the losers all hope to save their face;
Allying bland, defining grand, the party's winning stand.
But serve to cloak the sorry fact they know their proper place;
This halting stuff, berating rough, this derestimating tough,
Is rather dumb acceptance and a new excuse for hate;
Though slinging mud, and slinging blood, and dealing out the stinging truth,
They climb aboard the wagon of the party's candidate.

Republicans in Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin are worried over where the party started, but the general worry is where the party will end.

Hoover is to be informed on Aug. 11 of the fact that he is the nominee, but it would save considerable embarrassment if Mr. Work were told right now.

Imaginary Conversations.

From our close reading we learn that the holding Democrats in Texas have united on their differences.

One thing wrong with the ballyhoo for Tunney-Heeney affair is that if a person did not know it is to be a fight, he would get the idea it is to be a footrace.

The only trouble with these various war treaties is that the reasonable negotiations sound so much like unreasonable objections.

Greek Tragedy

PROFESSOR KING OEDIPUS. A version for the Modern Stage. By William Butler Yeats. (Macmillan).

IN THE revised pictorial edition of his "Outline of History," H. G. Wells, while rebuilding the world, in passing, at the Greek drama, sees at once that they have been ridiculously overrated and forthwith demolishes them with a flourish of the pen. Thus a flourish of demagoguery, shared by many of the best minds of the Western World for more than 20 centuries, was dispelled with a few swift words by a single master mind of our bright day. It was simply a matter of being shrewd enough to see the obvious at a glance.

Mr. Wells, in his brief but devastating criticism of Greek literature, says that he has read Homer and the tragic poets in translation and that he has found nothing whatever to justify the show of enthusiasm put up by Greek fans. He concludes, therefore, that said fans have been spiffing both themselves and us. As for the Greek language itself, the beauty of which has been lauded so highly, he has heard it read and it sounds to him "like the noises one hears in a defective plumbing system." This statement would get a "big hand" from any vaudeville audience anywhere.

It must be granted that it matters little how the Greeks sound to Wells, since all totally unfamiliar tongues have a way of sounding a bit queer, and there may be some appreciable difference in the sound of a language when the sense of it is sympathetically grasped. But even when full allowance is made for ignorance of the Greek language, the statement is a little senseless to explain Mr. Wells' flippant remark.

Still there is some truth in a portion of Mr. Wells' criticism. He failed to find therein sufficient justification for the enthusiasm of those who have read the Greek poets in the original. He failed to find it because it is not there, though in various translations there is certainly enough to justify a very different conclusion from that at which Mr. Wells leaps with undisguised glee.

Some day they'll bolt the party, but we never see the day;
Then reading where they pleading say, their mute, forlorn, unheeding hair,
Accept, but with a grain of salt, the loud they loudly state;
Their scheming done, their dreaming say, they hail the most beaming sun,
They climb aboard the wagon of the party's candidate.

passing, at the Greek world, sees at once that they have been ridiculously overrated and that the best minds of the Western world for more than 20 centuries have been spilling a few words by a single master mind of the bright day. It was simply a matter of being shrewd enough to see the obvious at a glance.

Mr. Wells, in his brief but fascinating criticism of Greek literature, says that he has read Homer and the tragic poets in translation and that he has found nothing whatever to justify the show of enthusiasm put up by Greek fans. He concludes, therefore, that said fans have been spilling both words and ink. As for the Greek language itself, the beauty of which has been lauded so highly, he has heard it read and it sounds to him "like the noise of a sea in a defective plumbing system." This statement would get a "big hand" from any vaudeville audience anywhere.

It must be granted that it matters little how the Greek sounds to a Wells, since all totally unfamiliar tongues have a way of sounding a bit queer; and there may be some appreciable difference in the sound of a language when the sense of it is sympathetically grasped. But even when full allowance is made for ignorance, nothing but an utter lack of musical sense could explain Mr. Wells' flippant remark.

Still there is some truth in a portion of Mr. Wells' criticism. Having read only translations, he failed to find therein sufficient justification for the enthusiasm of those who have read the Greek poets in the original. He failed to find it because it is not there, though in various translations there is certainly enough to justify a very different conclusion from that at which Mr. Wells leaps with undisguised glee. Surely no one who has ever felt deeply into any of the great passages of Greek poetry would say that there ever has been a wholly adequate English version of the same. Always a great deal is sacrificed. Not only are nuances of meaning and mood destroyed, but often even the literal significance of a line or passage is lost or altered, and the strangely luminous epithets go drab. Furthermore, the frequent magical union of sound and sense falls utterly to register in the new medium.

Perhaps the most satisfactory translations from the Greek poets are the Long, Leaf and Myers translation of the Iliad and the Butcher and Lang Odyssey; but even these, at least, the difference between a King James

GEORGE H. STEINBERG, RAIL OFFICER, IS DEAD

For 51 Years He Was in Employment of Terminal; Treasurer Since 1917.

Funeral services for George H. Steinberg, treasurer of the Terminal Railroad Association, who died yesterday of a complication of diseases, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at an undertaking establishment at 2661 Washington boulevard, thence to Missouri Crematorium.

Mr. Steinberg, who was 72 years old, had a service record of 51 years with the Terminal. He was born at Eighth street and Franklin avenue, attended the public schools and, on April 3, 1877, became bridge collector for the Terminal on the Eads Bridge. After various promotions, he became paymaster in 1892, and was elected treasurer in 1917. His son, Victor F. Steinberg, is now paymaster.

Failing health forced Steinberg to take a leave of absence recently, and he was planning to go to California when two weeks ago he became so weak he was taken to St. Mary's Infirmary where he died.

He lived at 4166 Russell boulevard with his wife, Freda A. Steinberg, and their one son.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 13.

THOUGHTS while strolling: The black Senegalese doorman with a French accent. Nothing so perky as a freshly bathed white poodle. The smart club room for Chinese waiters—most of them having a proprietary interest in chop suey cakes.

Few seem to patronize New York's health food cafes. Or golf schools. A nut store now every few blocks. Restaurants that open at 5:30 p. m. and close at 6 a. m. The pipe-smoking Englishmen who window shop. Sir Joseph Duveen's temple of art. Where patrons are expected to bring letters of reference. May Allison.

The Rialto swings into summer doldrums. The birdhouse on Forty-third street. Boasting actors "a liberty"—kissed by fickle egotisms. Outlanders looking for thrills among the citadels of Coffee Pots, tuned music facades and orange drinkeries. Ben Ames Williams, Jackson, O. boy, who made good in the city.

George Olsen's teeth. George White's thin bow tie. Percy Hammond's apple cheeks. Abe Erlanger's cap. Helen Morgan's hands. Ben All Haggin's mustache. Lee Shubert's white vest edging. Irvin Cobb's yellow gloves. Al Woods' "Hello Sweetheart." Louis Mann's minstrel collar.

Lobby idlers in the Astor. Shopping agents for hire. Fresh reducing institutes. The blind beggar who plays mournful tunes on a piccolo. The former professional dancer reputed to have grown rich as a rum runner. Malt and hop stores on Eighth avenue.

Sign: "Elegant table board with radio music." A push cart of oranges ups and the owner weeps. Poor fellow. Faded women who sit in the grumpy light of hallways. A wrestling studio. Roaming scissors grinders. Fly-blown stationery stores. And pool parlors.

Tenth Avenue! Where women wear back combs. A line of stuffy carriages following a hearse. And an entire neighborhood leaning from windows. High sidewalk bootblack chairs. Wan faces on Engineers to Honor Gen. Potter. St. Louis engineers will give a farewell dinner for Brigadier-General Charles L. Potter, retired, at 6:30 p. m., July 23, at the Engineers' Club, 4259 Lindell boulevard. Gen. Potter was retired several weeks ago from the presidency of the Mississippi River Commission after 39 years' service. He plans to depart for Europe next month. Arrangements for the dinner are being made by Baxter L. Brown, W. W. Horner and F. G. Jonah, and reservations may be made through C. W. S. Sammelman at the club.

beds pushed to windows. The brackish smell of soapuds.

A BRONX movie house offers an amusing simile on its program. The line was to read: "This house can be emptied as quick as a flash." But the printer made "flask." And that's a simile—plenty.

In a crime that has an under-world stamp the first places to be fine-combed by the police are East Side bath houses. Crooks as a rule prime themselves with drugs or liquor before embarking on their enterprise and when it is over they take advantage of a "sweating out" to have clear heads in case of a police questioning.

BATH HOUSES hatch many sinister crimes. In the Herman Rosenthal gambling murder, for instance, the plotting was done on a Turkish bath near Brooklyn Bridge. The bath offer a sequestered rendezvous fairly free of dictaphones or eavesdroppers.

THE beauty of cafe cigarette girls has often been remarked from the tragic little Celeste of old Maxim's to the present crop adorning the night clubs. No one seems able to explain the why of cigarette beauties. The majority could grace beauty shows and along Broadway it is likely they might easily become crepe de chine ladies and pursue the easiest way. Yet they do not and flirtatious gentlemen find themselves rebuffed. The cigarette girl seems to prefer working in the atmosphere of garish light and stale cigarette smoke to other and doubtless more profitable callings. She often holds a part day-time job and is able to live off her night club tips—the only salary she receives.

A NEW YORK columnist has been wasting space recently tossing sneers at Bruce Barton and myself. I don't know how Mr. Barton feels, but I happen to be a veteran snar collector. The first thing I say to Meadows after he has drawn the bath is, "Any sneers this morning?" and if he shakes his head gloomily the day is utterly ruined.

For Growing Children

serve plenty of this delicious bread

LET them have tea parties—the youngsters growing up! They adore them! And this is just one more reason. Mothers, to have your children eat lots of this wholesome, nourishing food... Baby Label Bread. Baby Label is the same delicious bread that you liked so much when you were a child... the bread that won your own mother thirty-seven years ago.

Before it was introduced, the women of St. Louis spent hours in the kitchen... wearing themselves out with the worry of baking, because no "bought" bread measured up to their high standards.

Then Baby Label made its appearance. Women were delighted with the delicate flavor of this new bread... its even texture, its lasting freshness! Almost overnight the drudgery of baking was banished from thousands of homes. The most exacting housewives served Baby Label Bread in preference to their own.

Today Baby Label is more delicious than ever. If you could only watch us bake it, you'd quickly know the reason. We use the highest-grade flour... the finest-grade shortening... and rich, wholesome milk.

The most particular housewife couldn't be more careful to have every loaf just right. Just order a loaf tomorrow and test it for yourself. See how your family like it. Notice how children take to it at once. Long before the first loaf is gone you'll know the reason for Baby Label's success.

Just say "Baby Label Bread" to your grocer. It is fresh from our ovens twice every day. Well-Boettler Bakery; Continental Baking Company.

THE CHERRY SEASON

IS A FLEETING ONE

Both the Sweet and Sour Varieties Make Equally Nice Cooked Dishes.

Contrary to the popular belief cherries may be used in other cooked dishes besides pies and tarts. Indeed, they are a versatile small fruit, adaptable for making soup, salad and a hot sauce to serve with roast meat. For sour cherries, mash a pint of sour cherries, cracking the pits, and cook in one pint of water 10 minutes after the boiling point is reached. Add one stick of cinnamon and the thin yellow rind of half a lemon to improve the flavor. Strain the liquid through a square of cheese cloth, return to the saucepan and thicken with two teaspoons of arrowroot blended with a little of the cold cherry water. Add one quart of clear bouillon, season with salt, pepper and two teaspoons of granulated sugar. Serve hot or cold with toasted oysterettes.

Cherry Nut Salad.
Remove stones and fill cavities thus made with pecan nut meats. Arrange on a bed of crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with cherries.

from which the stems have not been removed, if any are at hand. Serve with cream mayonnaise.

Cherry Sauce for Meat.
To make this sauce cook one pint of pitted cherries in two cups of water until fruit is soft. Put two or three cloves in the water in which fruit is cooked. Press the mixture when cooked soft through a sieve and return the pulp and juice to the fire and thicken with two tablespoons four blended with two tablespoons butter. While cooking, stir mixture constantly to prevent burning. Cook for five minutes after boiling begins. Add a few grains of salt and one tablespoon lemon juice. Serve with hot roast lamb or mutton.

TRY SOCIETY PUNCH

Nice for Porch Parties, Afternoon Teas and Bridge Luncheons.
A request for a recipe for a punch that could be served at an afternoon tea, bridge luncheon, tennis breakfast, porch party or other informal affair of the sort suggests "Society Punch."
This recipe will make society punch in a quantity sufficiently large to serve eight or more persons.

Mix three-fourths cup sugar and one cup water and boil for five minutes. Chill and add one cup syrup drained from pineapple, the juice of two oranges, and one cup ice water. Add one orange which has been sliced very thin without removing the rind, one-half cup crushed pineapple and one tablespoon minced marshmallow cherries. Pour over a piece of ice in a bowl.

HOW LONG SHOULD FRESH GREEN BEANS BE COOKED

If They Have Been Picked Some Time, They Require Long Cooking.

Fresh green beans should cook in about 40 minutes. The fresher they are, the less time is required for cooking. That is, those that are picked from the garden very often cook in 25 minutes. If they have been picked for some time so that the fiber is dried or toughened they will require a little longer cooking. But unless they are very old and very tough they should never be cooked for the length of time mentioned.

Most people cook fresh vegetables too long; they lose their flavor and some of their nutritive value when they are over-cooked. For instance, carrots, if young, and cut in quarters or in dice, will cook in from 20 to 25 minutes; new cabbage cut in pieces should cook in the same length of time. Fresh peas ought not to take more than 20 minutes; spinach should cook in 20 minutes. Fresh corn on the cob requires from 10 to 20 minutes, depending on how long it has been picked.

SERVE AN APPETIZER AT EVENING MEAL

After Day's Work Energy Low and Appetite Needs Tempting.

Introduce new ideas into your menus—for example, the "appetizer" habit. Make the appetizer your first course at every evening meal. An appetizer of fruit is a safe, fine idea in summer.

It stimulates appetite and prepares the way for better enjoyment of the meal. You can prepare the appetizer in the morning, placing your servings directly in your prettiest sherbet cups (for the summer meal should be attractively served), and keep on ice until mealtime.

South Sea Island Cocktail.
It sounds very enchanting and proves to be a wonderful way to begin a good meal. Just remove the skins from three bananas, cut in quarters lengthwise and slice in quarter-inch slices. Arrange in cocktail or sherbet glasses. Pour ice-cold, crushed pineapple contents of a large can over each, allowing about one-fourth cup in each serving. Garnish with a seeded cherry and serve immediately.

Fruit Cocktail.
Peel grapefruit and orange, remove membrane and divide into sections. Wash grapes, cut in halves and remove seeds and stem. Serve in cocktail glasses with two tablespoons gingerale.

Fresh Vegetable Cocktail.
Fresh vegetable cocktail is made with one cup each of grated turnip and carrot, one cup finely chopped fresh cranberries and three-fourths cup finely chopped green peas. The conventional cocktail sauce may be used with this, or equal portions of lemon and orange juice.

Three Fruit Cup.
Cut the bananas in thin slices. Peel the oranges and cut in lengthwise slices. Cut the grapes in halves. Mix the fruit lightly with the sugar and lemon juice. Serve in sherbet cups.

WELL COOKED SUMMER SQUASH IS REALLY VERY APPETIZING

There are many people who do not care particularly for squash because of its soft or loose texture. This is because the squash is usually served steamed or boiled and loses a great deal of its character.

Summer squash, particularly the yellow crooked neck, when young, can be cut crosswise in slices without peeling, the seeds scooped out, leaving on a yellow ring with about an inch of firm white flesh on the inside. These are dipped in beaten egg, then in fine bread crumbs and fried in bacon fat, butter or any of the cooking oils.

You will find that squash has a new meaning for you when cooked in this way. The pulp remains quite firm and the squash has a different flavor from when it is boiled or steamed. The crispness of the crumbs add to the flavor.

Tomato Nest.
Hollow out tomatoes and fill in one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper and one egg. Put several drops more Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper on top. Place in a pan of water and boil for even until eggs are firm.

Dear bewildered Madam:

There are so many biscuits and queer biscuit names! How in the world is a person going to remember the names of the biscuits she wants? Fortunately, you don't have to.

Long ago we gave our many different kinds of biscuits one family name. We call them Sunshine because they're full of it . . . born in it . . . baked in it.

You only have to remember the name Sunshine. It is the password, at your grocer's, to fine, plump Soda Crackers, luscious Fig Bars, oven-crisp Graham Crackers and many other fine biscuits.

RECIPES FOR DISHES IN WEEK'S MENUS

Some Very Simple Dishes for Hot Weather Luncheons and Dinners.

For Sunday dinner, raspberry cocktail is served as the first course. This is an appetizing way of serving strawberries and is another method of getting a little extra fruit into the diet.

Raspberry Cocktail.
Pick or select, wash and hull two cups of large ripe strawberries, cut in half and add one-third to one-half cup of powdered sugar, the juice of one orange and a teaspoon of lemon juice. Cover and let stand in a cold place for at least half an hour, longer is better.
Serve in sherbet or fruit cocktail cups with two or three fresh mint leaves for garnish.

These souffles.
Melt three tablespoons of butter, add four tablespoons of flour, and stir until well blended. Then add three-quarters of a cup of milk and cook until the mixture is very thick and smooth. Beat three egg yolks until light and lemon colored, add one teaspoon of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of dry mustard and one-half teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce. Stir the hot mixture into the egg yolks. Then add one cup of grated cheese.

Stir over the fire for a minute or two and then remove and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the three eggs. Pour into well greased individual baking dishes or into a large shallow baking dish and bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees—about 25 minutes or until well puffed and brown. Serve at once.

Potato and Fish Salad.
Almost any kind of fish can be combined with the potatoes in the making of this salad—smoked white fish, sardines, kipper snacks, fish flakes, tuna fish, any left-over boiled or baked fish. Whatever fish it is break it in pieces with a fork and measure one cup of the fish to three cups of cold diced new potatoes.

Add one tablespoon of chopped pickles or pickle relish, a teaspoon of minced parsley, one-half cup of thinly sliced crisp radishes, with enough salt and pepper to season.
Stir the mixture together lightly with a fork and then add mayonnaisse or Russian dressing to moisten. Serve on lettuce, romaine or watercress and garnish with small sweet pickles or with slices of stuffed olives.

over roast lamb. Finely chop one cup cooked lamb. Season to taste with pepper and salt. Add one-eighth teaspoon of celery salt.
Add several drops of onion juice.
Turn into a buttered baking dish and pour one and one-half cups milk over the meat. Four slightly beaten eggs should have been added to the milk. Bake in a moderate oven until delicately brown.
Serve on a platter with a border of mashed potatoes. The potatoes may be flavored with finely chopped mint leaves.

Poached Eggs.
Use the top portion of a double-boiler and fill one-half full of boiling water; add one-half teaspoon salt. Break egg into a cup, stir the water rapidly in circles;
drop in egg while water is revolving. Remove from fire, cover and let stand 8 minutes for soft eggs;
14 minutes for medium and 25 minutes for hard-cooked eggs.

ADD BITS OF FRESH FRUIT
TO THE ICE COLD DRINKS Put in Berries, Bits of Pineapple and an Elusive Cherry.

Who hasn't fished with zeal and determination and one wobbly straw for the cherry in the bottom of a glass of lemonade? And what a sense of victory hard won there was when the elusive bit of red was finally captured! That one bit of fruit simply made the drink.

But cherries are not the only fruits for which you can fish in summer drinks. There is pineapple. Of course you always save the syrup from a can of pineapple to use in punch, but did you ever think of adding a few bits of pineapple to each glass?
Try using them and you will like the beverage even better, for the fruit gives just the tang that may be missing in the taste, and the dressing that may be lacking in the appearance.

SERVE CANTALOUPE OFTEN
In Most Parts of the Country Melons Are Plentiful.

The cantaloupe is one of the richest of the melon family and many people prefer its flavor without any additional seasoning. A few drops of lemon juice, however, seem to bring out the natural flavor of the melon to a much greater extent and will also add to the mineral and vitamin content.

Many people have formed the habit of serving a slice of lemon with each portion of melon, squeezing the juice over the melon when it is eaten.

Cold Boiled Tongue.
Soak an ox tongue in cold water for a few hours, bring slowly to boiling point; skim, and cook gently for three hours. Skin tongue carefully and take out the bones at the root. Lay the prepared tongue on a board; shape it nicely and let it grow cold. Later trim the root neatly. Glaze the tongue, put a paper frill around the root, dice and garnish.

BAKE THESE SMALL CAKES FOR THE PICNIC SUPPER

They Are Much Better If Cooked
the Day Before They Are Eaten.
Cream together one-half cup of butter or shortening and one cup of sugar. When the mixture is smooth and well blended add two egg yolks and beat thoroughly.
Then stir in one-half cup of orange juice, mixed with one teaspoon of lemon juice.

Sift two cups of cake flour with two teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon of baking soda. Add to the other mixture and then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Beat thoroughly, pour the mixture into small greased cake pans or into greased shallow pan, having the mixture not more than one-inch thick. Bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—15 to 20 minutes. Then cool.

For icing mix one teaspoon of lemon juice, one-half teaspoon of grated lemon rind and a teaspoon of cold water in a bowl. Then add one cup of confectioners' sugar and beat until smooth. Stir in a teaspoon of melted butter and more sugar until the mixture is stiff enough to spread without running.

Ice the cakes with this and sprinkle thickly with the little colored candies known as "hundreds of thousands" and stick a small paper flag upright in the center of each cake. If the cake is baked in a shallow pan, ice and then cut into squares, putting a flag in the top of each square.

Season Meat With Nutmeg.
If you have never tried seasoning stews, hash, dressing, etc., with nutmeg, I advise you to try it, for it gives a very pleasing flavor.

FOOD HomeEconomics GROCERIES

FRUIT SANDWICHES ARE NEW
They are particularly recommended for Hot Weather Luncheons. A modification of the fruit toast is the fruit sandwich. While the fruit toast is best for breakfast, the fruit sandwiches makes a delicious luncheon dessert. It is prepared by having two nicely toasted slices of bread ready for a filling of fresh stewed or mashed fresh fruits. Almost any small fruit lends itself to such a dish and its food value is high. Individual servings are best for such a sandwich. After arranging the filling and arranging the top slice in its proper place, prepare a dressing of the stewed fruit around the whole sandwich.

ATTRACTION IDEAS FOR PORCH PARTIES

Dainty Refreshments Add Finishing Touch to This Form of Entertaining.

July's warm, sunny days start the ball of porch parties rolling. Sun porches are dressed in their summer finery of fresh cretonne and awnings, and what pleasanter place in the whole house for an afternoon bridge, for entertaining a few people for tea and talk or to listen on a fine radio program? Refreshments for these occasions are simple, so that the hostess can enjoy her guests—and her porch—yet they should be attractive enough to call attention to the season and to the occasion.

The menus I am suggesting this week are simple, single-plate affairs except for the beverages. Candies or salted nuts may be added for an additional dainty. The food may be served directly on the plates and the beverage from a large tray or from a tea cart. If sandwiches are used, cakes and salted nuts may be served from the tea cart as a second course.

Menu II.—Assorted sandwiches, surprise sponge cakes, iced choco or iced tea with mint.

Cocoanut fruit salad is made from a combination of fresh strawberries cut in half, fresh or canned pineapple cut in small pieces, diced oranges and shredded canned cocoanut. Either a honey dressing or a cream mayonnaise may be served with the salad. For honey dressing, mix one-quarter of a cup of strained honey with two tablespoons of orange juice, a teaspoon of lemon juice and two tablespoons of pineapple juice. Add three tablespoons of salad oil and beat the mixture until thick and well blended.

Cheese Adds Substance.

The cheese sandwiches that are served with the salad are made by making cream cheese with a little salt and enough cream or evaporated milk to moisten, then adding one-half teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and two or three table-spoons of very finely chopped nuts. Spread between slices of whole wheat or white bread and cut into strips for serving.

Ginger ale punch is a combination of fruit juices and ginger ale. A good mixture is one-third grape juice, one-third orange juice and one-third ginger ale or one-third mixed fruit juice and two-thirds ginger ale. Fill the glasses about one-third full of crushed ice.

In Menu No. 1, the assorted sandwiches should include one sweet, one savory and one crisp filling. For instance, shrimp paste made from canned shrimp, mashed, seasoned with Worcestershire sauce, a little salt, a dash of paprika and enough mayonnaise to make a smooth paste. Spread on thin slices of buttered white bread and then roll and chill the slices.

Some New Sandwiches.

Finely chopped cucumber, drained and mixed with a very small amount of mayonnaise and two tablespoons of chopped salted almonds for every one-half cup of cucumber is spread between thin slices of whole wheat or white bread and then cut in squares with the crusts removed. The third sandwich might be made of nut bread spread with cream cheese and guava jelly or cream cheese and raspberry jelly. It is best to cut each of these sandwiches in distinctive shapes and to arrange them on a plate so that each variety is by itself.

The beverage served with these is made of equal parts of cold chocolate and strong coffee, seasoned with cream or evaporated milk and slightly sweetened. Hot tea, of course, or hot coffee may always be substituted for the cold beverage and is preferred by many persons even on the hottest day.

The surprise sponge cakes are little cakes with the insides scooped out and filled with whipped cream and then the tops put back in place.

FISH FORMS RIGHT FOOD FOR SUMMER

Several Varieties of Fish Are Most Common in the Summertime.

FRESH fish seems to fit especially well into the summer diet, and it should be used in a much wider fashion than it is. Fish is easy of digestion, can be quickly cooked, may be had in a great many varieties and is good either hot or cold, all of which facts make it useful to the woman who is trying to plan nutritious meals with the least possible expenditure of effort and work.

The varieties of fish that are most common in the summertime are flounder, weak fish, blue fish, halibut, mackerel, bass, perch, some varieties of trout and codfish. The white-fleshed fish are as a rule readily digested and assimilated. They may be cooked in many ways, either broiled, steamed, boiled, baked and occasionally fried. Leftover fish is useful for making salads, sandwich fillings and scalloped or creamed fishes, any of which fit nicely into the summer meal plan.

Flounders are readily filleted and are good steamed, boiled, or fried. The fish is white, quite firm and when steamed or boiled may be chilled, spread with mayonnaise that is well seasoned and used for cold meals. The crispness of fried flounder, especially if it is cooked in deep fat, gives it a good appetite quality, though fried foods, generally speaking, are not advocated for hot weather. When they are served they should be accompanied by at least one green vegetable and a crisp raw vegetable salad.

White fish is generally baked, and cooks more quickly if it is split and baked without stuffing. A medium-sized fish will bake in a hot oven in 25 minutes. It may be served with melted butter and lemon juice or it may be baked with narrow strips of bacon.

Blue fish is one of the fat fish and may be either baked or broiled and is best served hot. The leftover may be used for salads or for stuffed tomatoes. Served hot, it is best with a little lemon juice or with a crisp cucumber salad served with French dressing.

Halibut is a white fish and is almost entirely lacking in fat. It is usually bought in steaks and is best broiled or steamed. Steamed halibut, thoroughly chilled and spread with mayonnaise is a delicious cold summer food. It may also be jellied by covering a cold boiled slice of the fish with aspic jelly, chilling it and serving with mayonnaise.

Mackerel belongs, like blue fish, to the fat fish group and is best baked or broiled. It may occasionally also be fried, especially if the very small mackerel are used. Sometimes mackerel are baked in a mixture of vinegar and spices which gives a particularly savory flavor and one that is very appetizing for hot days. When cooked in this way they are always served cold. One of the advantages of this method of cooking is that the vinegar acts as a preservative and the fish will keep in a cool place for several days after cooking.

TRY A TASTY BANANA SALAD
FOR YOUR TODAY'S DINNER
It is Nourishing as Well as Tempting to the Eye and Appetite.

There is nothing richer and more satisfying than a cool dish of salad on a warm day. Crisp leaves of lettuce curling upward on a pale yellow glass dish, slices of creamy bananas, squares of golden pineapple, oranges, cantaloupes, peaches and a scant shower of red berries! The very sight of such rich colors is enough to whet the lagging appetite.

For instance, cart-wheel fruit salad is delicious and a treat to the eye. Cut six or eight ripe bananas in halves. Place each half on a crisp romaine salad leaf, and at the base of each leaf a slice of orange. Arrange the leaves in cart-wheel design on a glass platter. In the center of the wheel pile cantaloupe balls, cut with a potato scoop. Garnish with parsley and serve with mayonnaise. The presence of bananas insures nourishment. Only be sure that they are entirely ripe. Brown flecks spell ripeness on a deep yellow skin.

French fruit salad is also delightful. Peel equal quantities of bananas, pears and apples and cut into dice. Mix with a light mayonnaise enriched with cream and flavored with lemon juice instead of vinegar. Serve on lettuce leaves and decorate with any tart jelly.

Another exceptionally good salad is the cabbage salad. You need two cups of chopped cabbage, one-half cup of salad dressing, three-fourths cup of celery, two bananas, lettuce and paprika. Shred or chop the cabbage; add diced celery and finely cut bananas. Mix lightly with salad dressing and serve very cold on lettuce leaves. Sprinkle with paprika. This is enough for six persons.

The clever use of bananas furnishes the necessary carbohydrates to the body. This fruit during the summer months is in abundance and satisfies the most modest

COTTAGE AND CREAM CHEESE ARE GOOD SUMMER FOODS

There are many times in hot weather when meat does not especially appeal to our appetites. At such times cheese offers a very welcome substitute to supply the needed protein. Cottage cheese, or cream cheese, because of its slight acid flavor, seems to have a particular appeal in hot weather and when served with fresh fruit or almost any variety and thin cream it makes a most wholesome and satisfying luncheon dish.

The cheese should be cold and should not be too dry. Very often it is necessary to season it slightly and to mix it up with a little milk, beating it thoroughly with a fork to break the curd. Pile it in mounds, surround with fresh slightly sweetened fruit and serve as cold as possible.

Virginia Bakes Ham.
Prepare a boiled ham by sticking a liberal quantity of cloves into the entire surface. Spread with molasses into which has been stirred two tablespoons of mustard. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake.

Yes... a better way to wash dishes

Science brings forward Super Suds—beads of soap
New! Different! Quick!

WASH dishes the new scientific way—with Super Suds, the new bead soap which has swept from coast to coast in a few months' time! Put your dishpan in the sink. Pour generously from the convenient, free-flowing Super Suds package. Turn on the hot water. Soap dissolves instantly—completely.

Why Super Suds replaces chips

Every woman knows that a soap which dissolves quickly and completely makes the tedious task of dishwashing easier.

Once women had only bar soap. Next came chips. Better—but chips were slow-dissolving, and oh, how much soap was wasted!

And now—through the discovery of these amazing new soap beads—you can get a perfect soap solution in ten seconds. Not one of the older forms of soap can dissolve so fast as Super Suds, the bead soap.*

Super Suds is not at all like chips, flakes, powders. It is soap in a new form—tiny hollow beads, tissue-thin. Four times as thin as chips—the thinnest soap ever made.

Super Suds makes glassware sparkle. Not a trace of soapy film on china. No need to wipe—just hot rinse and drain.

Use Super Suds for clothes too. Splendid in tub or washing machine. Use it all over the house—for windows, for painted woodwork, and for making the bathroom spick and span.

Full directions on every package, and a valuable Octagon coupon, too. Save the coupons and get lovely premiums.

Just ask your grocer for Super Suds—the biggest box of soap you ever saw for 10 cents.

*COMPARE! Make this test right in your own kitchen

A pan of warm water. Two strainers. In one a tablespoon of any chip. In the other the same amount of Super Suds. Plunge both strainers into water. Stir briskly while you count ten. Then—lift both strainers! In one strainer, half of the chips still there. In the other, Super Suds all gone! Quick-dissolving Super Suds saves dishwashing time, makes clothes whiter Clothes whiter! ... Quick, strong suds ... No more soap stains ... Gentle on clothes ... Saves one rinsing ... Saves hands ... A sweeter, softer wash

LETUCE IN SEASON ALL YEAR ROUND

Many Kinds of This Healthful Vegetable Found Good to Serve.

There was a time when lettuce was looked upon as grass and held somewhat in contempt as an article of food. When it was served as salad, those serving it were looked upon as slightly "high hat." Now, however, it is a regularly accepted daily article of food. People who pay a deal of attention to their diet use it several times a day. Most of us use it at least several times a week.

Lettuce is in season all year around. It is quite economical, as there is seldom any waste, all of the head of the lettuce being edible.

There are several varieties of lettuce on the market, some of them all year around, others more seasonal. Lettuce is not always just lettuce, but different varieties should be considered for the purpose for which they are to be used.

For instance, there is Boston lettuce. This is a round cabbage-shaped head with delicate green outside leaves, sometimes quite coarse in texture, but the inner leaves are tender, lighter in color, sometimes nearly white. A good head of Boston lettuce is firm, with the leaves closely folded, but easily separated from each other.

Then we have garden lettuce. This can be bought in some markets very early in the summer and is, as its name implies, largely grown in summer gardens. In this variety the leaves do not head, they are loose, but usually very tender rather than crisp and as a light green in color.

Romaine lettuce is another variety made up of rather long green leaves which are joined at the base or the stem and are sometimes slightly headed. It is crispier than the garden or Boston lettuce, sometimes has quite a thick mid-rib and is very slightly bitter in flavor. The inner leaves are usually quite light in color, the outside ones, according to size, being a darker green and sometimes quite coarse in texture. It is usually best to break the largest leaves before using them for salad.

Last we have the Simpson or the Iceland lettuce which is had in very large amounts during the winter and is in season practically all year around. This form round, very tight heads, very light, sometimes almost white in color and very crisp. The leaves do not separate easily and the lettuce is very often cut in quarters or in slices for serving.

If it is desired to separate the leaves, the best way to do it is to cut out the root end, cutting up into the head quite deeply, then hold under the water tap and let a stream of water run into the cut end. The force of the water usually forces the leaves apart so that they can be separated without breaking.

ICE CREAM HAS HIGH PLACE ON NUTRITIVE FOOD LIST

It is an Important Article in the Diet of the American People.

Because of the nourishing value of this health food, too often regarded by the housekeeper as a delicacy, it can be served several times a week much to the delight and good health of the entire family.

Containing, as it does, the best qualities of milk and cream with a little flavoring and sugar added, ice cream solves the problem of dessert in happy fashion.

Ice cream contains the best known form of protein for muscle building.

It contains mineral matter essential to proper development of bones and teeth.

It contains the various vitamins necessary for growth, assimilation and body development.

It contains butter fat and sugar for energy and helps to keep the body in good condition.

It is easily digested and all of the food elements are of the best quality and in an easily assimilated form.

It contains all of the food elements of milk and can be classed as a protective food.

BERRY SYRUPS

Blackberries or Raspberries Suitable for Making These Syrups.

Wash thoroughly, drain, mash the berries, and measure. Add to them half their measure of cold water. Let stand for one-half hour, then strain off the liquid, measure, and add to it twice its measure of sugar. Cook to a syrup, to 220 degrees, skimming if necessary.

A second and third extraction of juice may be made by adding to the pulp left from the straining half its measure of cold water and cooking the whole for five minutes. Strain off the liquid and treat like the first extraction. Syrups made with these second and third or cooked extractions will have a more pronounced flavor but not the coloring power of the first.

Bolled Corned Beef.

Wash and soak corned beef in cold water over night. In morning rinse with cold water and cover with scalding water. Let come slowly to boiling point and boil 15 minutes; then reduce the heat and simmer gently, allowing 50 minutes for each pound of meat.

A Baked Apple Meat.

If apples are picked with a fork before baking they will not crack open.

I really marvel at the young mothers of today. Their wisdom is nothing short of astounding. No child of theirs is permitted, in spite of the most dotting of grandparents, to play the role of new toy for the diversion of the family. The rights of the modern baby are firmly respected, his routine sternly maintained. His baths and feedings and sleep follow each other in the most orderly precision. No wonder he is a calm, healthy, good-natured baby, easy to care for, steady in gains.

I admit that there are exceptions, because not every baby gets a perfect start. When there are feeding problems to be solved, the mother's responsibilities are heavy. But baby specialists today have such a broad knowledge that it usually takes but a little while to discover the right food for your infant.

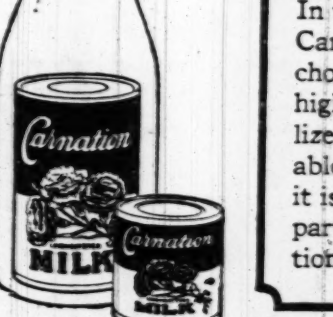

The best milk for your baby

On one thing you will find that all doctors agree. For the baby just starting out in life, breast-feeding is a great advantage over artificial feeding.

If your baby must be artificially fed, let your doctor be the one to advise you. With his wide experience with healthy babies, he can guide you to the right substitute for mother's milk.

He may advise you to use Carnation Milk in the feeding of your baby. If he does, you can feel well satisfied with his Carnation Milk Products Co., 100 Carnation Bldg., Oconomowoc, Wis.

Of course the feeding of babies is but one of Carnation Milk's important uses. It is wonderful for all cooking, better in results, economical, convenient and dependable. Why not send for the Carnation Cook Book? It is free. Address Carnation Milk Products Co., 100 Carnation Bldg., Oconomowoc, Wis.

Safe For Babies

In the feeding of infants, Carnation Milk is a safe choice. It is whole milk of high quality—pure, sterilized, uniform—and available anywhere. Because it is "homogenized," it is particularly easy of digestion. Ask your doctor.

A second and third extraction of juice may be made by adding to the pulp left from the straining half its measure of cold water and cooking the whole for five minutes. Strain off the liquid and treat like the first extraction. Syrups made with these second and third or cooked extractions will have a more pronounced flavor but not the coloring power of the first.

Bolled Corned Beef. Wash and soak corned beef in cold water over night. In morning rinse with cold water and cover with scalding water. Let come slowly to boiling point and boil 15 minutes; then reduce the heat and simmer gently, allowing 50 minutes for each pound of meat.

A Baked Apple Meat. If apples are picked with a fork before baking they will not crack open.

There was a time when lettuce was looked upon as grass and held somewhat in contempt as an article of food. When it was served as salad, those serving it were looked upon as slightly "high hat." Now, however, it is a regularly accepted daily article of food. People who pay a deal of attention to their diet use it several times a day. Most of us use it at least several times a week.

Lettuce is in season all year around. It is quite economical, as there is seldom any waste, all of the head of the lettuce being edible.

There are several varieties of lettuce on the market, some of them all year around, others more seasonal. Lettuce is not always just lettuce, but different varieties should be considered for the purpose for which they are to be used.

For instance, there is Boston lettuce. This is a round cabbage-shaped head with delicate green outside leaves, sometimes quite coarse in texture, but the inner leaves are tender, lighter in color, sometimes nearly white. A good head of Boston lettuce is firm, with the leaves closely folded, but easily separated from each other.

Then we have garden lettuce. This can be bought in some markets very early in the summer and is, as its name implies, largely grown in summer gardens. In this variety the leaves do not head, they are loose, but usually very tender rather than crisp and as a light green in color.

log's explanation in the note of June 23 that the revised preamble of the treaty "gives express recognition" to the principal that, if a signatory state makes war in violation of the treaty, the other treaty powers are released automatically from obligations to that state; that it makes war in violation of the Locarno treaties also a violation of the new treaty, and further that the right of self defense would not be jeopardized by the multilateral treaty.

A favorable reply from France will be handed to American Ambassador Herrick in Paris within a few days, probably tomorrow, which is Bastille day, the French Ambassador, Paul Claudel, informed Kellogg. The Ambassador said the reply would be an acceptance of the explanations and interpretations of the proposed treaty contained in Kellogg's note of June 23.

Some of the Provisions. Under the proposed treaty, the signatory nations would "condemn recourse to war" and "renounce it as an instrument of national policy." Further, they would agree to use only pacific means in seeking a settlement of whatever disputes or conflicts might arise between them, regardless of their nature or origin.

In its present form, the pact is a modification of one submitted in April. Revisions in the language of the treaty were made to meet objections raised by other nations.

Rumanian Cabinet Accepts Plan With Reservations.

By the Associated Press. BUCHAREST, July 12.—Acceptance of Secretary of State Kellogg's anti-war proposal was announced at a Cabinet Council today by Foreign Minister Titulescu. Acceptance is conditioned on the reservation that the obligations of Rumania toward the League of Nations shall not be interfered with. Titulescu added that the other members of the Little Entente and Poland held similar views.

Here's the secret

WE buy all our own barley direct from the farmer to be absolutely positive of getting the very finest.

We thoroughly clean and perfectly malt each grain by a process that triples the amount of time ordinarily used in making common "forced" malt.

We age the malted grain for months to insure full flavor. Then—and not until then—is the malt ready to be made into Schlitz Malt Syrup.

In the entire process of making this fine malt syrup we follow a special Schlitz formula that cannot be successfully duplicated—a process that insures 100% purity and gives it that finer flavor.

And every ounce is doubly filtered and doubly pasteurized!

That's the secret in a nutshell—that's why Schlitz is so pure and good and reliable!

You're safe with

THE WAY —OF— A WOMAN

By—Marguerite Mooers Marshall
GOLD DIGGERS.

TO many women, one of the most exasperating things about men is the way in which they actually LIKE to be worked, used, exploited. They MUST like it! Else why does a pretty, perfectly healthy but likewise perfectly helpless widow find men eager to do every chore for her—her playing nurse to her children to playing providence to her never-quitte-big-enough bank balance—for the sole reward of her grateful smiles? Why does the wife who expects her husband to work downtown like a dog, in order to provide her with luxuries, and to wait on her by inches uptown, have a far more comfortable time of it than the self-respecting, unsatisfied wife whose demands on the man she marries are few and far between? Why does a callously selfish girl frequently command more masculine interest and attention than her equally pretty friend who scorns gold-digging?

Our own answer to these questions is that the average man's dominant characteristic and ruling passion is vanity. The woman who asks him to do things for her—buy her bracelets, balance her check-book, carry her belongings, pay for her lunches, go on her errands, help her in any and every way—is saying to him, in effect: "You are so much richer, wiser, stronger, more wonderful than Poor Little Me—it is because you are my superior in every way that I am asking you to help me out."

Breathes a man with content so dead that he won't get up those words unsaid—but words nevertheless implied in every imposition laid upon him by the helpless or the gold-digging female? Oh, yes, one or two men don't fall for such feminine tribute to their physical, mental and financial greatness—one or two men appreciate the square-jawed modern woman who wants to pull her own weight and who refuses to concede that she is incapable of doing so, just to flatter masculine vanity. But most men still prefer, to the self-reliant female, the female who relies on them!

GENTLEMEN'S preferences are not, however, invariably consulted nowadays. What with jobs and votes, some women, even some young ones, have chosen to take and keep for themselves the luxury of self-respect. They are not man-haters, not in a million years. But they can't and won't play up to men for value received. Their kissing goes by favor and not by financial rating. And they can't and won't conform to man's artificial ideal of lovely woman, for the sake of collecting on a pose. From the viewpoint of the gold-digger, they're simply hopeless business women!

That increasing number of girls who object to being gold-diggers will read with chuckles of satisfaction Anita Loos' analysis of their type in her new book, "But—Gentlemen Marry Brunettes." Lorelei, the deathless blonde of gentlemen's preferences, tells the story, but Dorothy, the brunette wise-cracker, is the heroine—Dorothy, who, as Lorelei painstakingly explains, does all the wrong things. That is to say, Dorothy follows her heart and not her policy. Dorothy is a living and most amusing demonstration of how not to be a gold-digger.

First of all, she hasn't it in her to be superficially sentimental for revenue only. Watching Lorelei motherhood with a disillusioned eye, she can observe that "a kid that looks like any rich father is as good as money in the bank." But Dorothy wouldn't have a baby for such a reason. Nor would she do what a Dorothy of our acquaintance disgustedly denounced as cooing at every baby in the subway, when there's a man with you, just to make him think you're a born little mother!

Second, the girl who won't be a gold digger can afford to have a sense of humor about—and with—her men. Dorothy, as Lorelei complains, "doesn't know how to hold the interest of a broker. Because Dorothy always seems to want to make a broken laugh, which is fatal in itself."

Third, the Dorothy of the world can—and usually so—like poor men better than rich ones. "I'm always running out on millionaires," admits Anita Loos' Dorothy.

Fourth, she actually doesn't think, when she likes a man, that the giving should be all on his side. She is generous rather than cold-bloodedly cautious. She would rather think him wonderful than hear him continually raving about her charms, as a stuffed shirt named Charlie raves about Dorothy's. "And then Dorothy would decide," wails the exasperated Lorelei, "that Charlie was not so bright or why would he think that a girl like she was wonderful?"

THINK, of course, is no way for a girl to get ahead in the world, assuming that she is on the matrimonial muck. Most men, as we have said, still appreciate most the gold digging female who soothes their vanity even while she makes them pay through the nose for it. The girl who won't exploit is likely to be exploited. The girl who wants to love and worship unselfishly is likely to be taken at her word too well.

SMART WRAPS FOR MIDSUMMER

THE three-quarter-length coat of glazed chintz is decidedly smart this summer. The model at left, of hand-blocked English fabric, is patterned in blue, rose, orchid and green on a yellow background. The lining is of handkerchief linen and the cuffs are trimmed with yellow bone buttons. The graceful evening wrap at right combines golden tissue and sheer black velvet. The lines are exceptionally good for wear over the bouffant, irregular, evening skirt. A wide scarf of black velvet finishes off the shirred neck. Lining is peach pink satin.

Children's Bedtime Story

THE START FOR HOME.

Who for defense is well prepared
Has few occasions to be scared.
—Jimmy Skunk.

LITTLE Mrs. Peter realized how very dangerous it was for her all-white little son, to be out in the Great World. "It is so hot in the Great World," said she, "to keep out of sight with a regular Rabbit coat. I don't know of anybody who has to be more constantly watchful than does a Rabbit. But for you to be out in the Great World with this white coat is impossible. You just can't live long, that's all. It will be all right in winter. Then you will have the advantage of the rest of us. But until the snow comes, the place for you is in the dear Old Briar-patch. Now, follow me, my dear, and we'll start back."

"But I don't want to go home," whined Whitey. "I've just got out in the Great World and I want to see it."

Little Mrs. Peter looked at Whitey very long and hard. "Do you want to see it as a Rabbit, or do you want to see it as part of a Fox or a Hawk or an Owl?" she demanded. "That is exactly what would happen. It is a wonder to me that you have not been caught already. Now, follow me."

Right down in his hole, Whitey was only too glad to follow Mother. He had a feeling of comfort and of safety when he was at her heels. He had a feeling that, no matter what happened, she would see that no harm came to him. So he meekly followed.

Little Mrs. Peter led the way along the old cowpath, and if Whitey had been taking notice, he would have discovered that she tried to be always within a jump or two of a bush or bramble. If there was any distance between these safety points, she would first sit up to look and listen. Then she would give a signal and they would run as fast as their legs could take them to the next safety point. Finally, they reached the edge of the Old Pasture nearest to the dear Old Briar-patch. There they stopped. You see, it was getting toward morning. It was growing lighter every minute. "We shall have to spend the day here," said Mrs. Peter, in the most decided manner. "It won't be safe until night to try to get across to the dear old Briar-patch. Look, there is Whitey! the Marsh Hawk now! And there is his cousin, Redtail the Hawk, away up in the sky, circling around and around. One of them would have one of us before we were halfway there."

So they remained where they were and took a long nap. It was while they were taking a nap that Jimmy Skunk happened along. Jimmy usually pays very little attention to people about him. But he caught sight of Whitey in there and that white coat puzzled him. At first he thought it might be a member of his own family. So Jimmy started to work his way into that bramble-tangle. Little Mrs. Peter was awake in an instant and she moved a little farther into the bramble-tangle.

"Oh!" said Jimmy Skunk. "I beg your pardon, Mrs. Peter. All the time he was staring very hard at Whitey. 'Is this one of your children?' he inquired. 'Yes,' replied Little Mrs. Peter.

Little Mrs. Peter led the way along the old cowpath.

Jimmy shook his head. "Too bad, too bad!" said he. "I don't see how he is going to come to any good end. Now, in my family a white coat makes little difference. We each of us carry a little scent gun and that is sufficient. But how a white Rabbit can expect to live long is beyond me."

You can guess how uncomfortable this made Whitey feel. (Copyright, 1928.)

Noodles au Gratin.

Cook 1 package of broad noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Make a white sauce of 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour and 1 cup milk. Season with 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper and add 1 cup grated cheese. Cook until cheese is melted and then mix with well-drained noodles. Bake in a buttered ring mold, the center of which may be filled with whatever green vegetable is to be served with the dinner.

Just a Little Water.

When washing mirrors, use as little water as possible so that none of the water gets in back of the glass. It will ruin the mirror.

Removing Make-Up the Important Thing

If keeping a School-girl Complexion is your aim

Use this treatment of famous beauty oils to cleanse correctly.

WHETHER you use rouge and powder or not—you can never have a truly charming complexion if natural beauty is missing. Natural beauty may be enhanced by make-up—but without natural loveliness cosmetics cannot fail to seem artificial.

One of the greatest complexion errors that can be made is in attempting to cleanse the skin thoroughly without using the right soap. Only a true beauty soap, made of the oils of olive and palm—such as soap as Palmolive—will do. The day's

3:30—Lecture on peeling potatoes. By a desk sergeant of kitchen police.

3:45—Statistics. To hold a safe through a fourteen-story window. It takes 175 innocent bystanders, working on both sides of the street, in addition to the safe movers.

3:55—Home art lesson. Six beautiful designs for marking playing cards.

4:15—Talk on college life. By Eric J. Blount, Heinz '37.

4:35—Success talk. How I make a living pulling trunks around. By an elephant trainer.

4:50—Things you ought to know. The various flypapers today have a circulation of 4,515,000,000 copies annually. As flypaper is non-returnable, this circulation is practically net.

5:10—History lecture. It took 300 years to build the Pyramids, so it must have been a cur job.

5:30—Opening of S. P. C. A. drive against pearl necklaces to prevent so many dumb oysters from being slaughtered.

5:45—Talk on flasks, midlrons and other precious metals.

6:05—Health lecture. Stud poker is the healthiest of all games. It has forced more men to walk home, instead of boarding stuffy street cars, than any other pastime in the world.

6:25—Political dope. A man that can talk like Senator Heflin is bound to be heard from in the future. In fact, that is the chief objection to Him.

6:40—Statistics. In several American cities there are almost as many homes as there are garages.

7:00—Pep talk on salesmanship. How to sell loaded dice at a Sunday school picnic.

7:20—Lecture on America, the land of opportunity. Many men who ten years ago were working for the Government for $1 a year are millionaires now.

7:35—Confessions of a radio announcer. I don't receive much salary, but I get a lot of mail.

7:55—Statistics. King Solomon's marriage record is higher than De Wolf Hopper's, but Solomon did not have to spend half his time reciting "Casey at the Bat."

8:15—Historical lecture. In 1912, radio was unknown. In those days folks thought it was wonderful to telephone a friend without being cut off. It still is.

8:35—Confessions of an international crook. At the age of six I was thrown out of kindergarten for cheating. I cut the chalk into small pieces and sold them to the other children as aspirin tablets.

A DISH FOR TODAY

Shrimp Pate.

THE pate was enjoyed in Buenos Aires. Mound three cups of sifted flour in a mixing bowl, form a hole in the center and pour into it salt-ful of salt, a teaspoonful of sugar, a tablespoonful of hard, a cupful of butter and the yolks of four eggs. With a knife cut the shortening through the flour and then mix all thoroughly, turn onto a floured board and cut in half-inch thick rounds to fit waffle pans. Grease the pans and put a layer in the bottom of each. Now have prepared two glass jars of shrimp, cleaned and broken in pieces, dust with red pepper, moisten with cream sauce, then place a layer in each pan and cover with the top rounds. Brush over with butter and bake 15 minutes in a medium oven. Serve cream sauce with the plates.

Usually Successful.

If the garment has been stained with gasoline and a ring has left in place of the spot, try the mark over the spot with a teakettle. It will frequently remove the ring.

THREE GENERATIONS

by WARWICK DEEPIG

AUTHOR OF "SORRELL AND SON"

SYNOPSIS.
Old John Pybus, formerly a bookseller in London and later in Winterbourne, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Craven when his son, Conrad, sees him there. He is estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him. Conrad hastens to tell his brother, Probyn, that he has seen his father. Probyn's son, Lance Pybus, had believed his grandfather dead, but he looks him up at the inn at Castle Craven without telling his parents of the meeting. When Lance finishes at Cambridge he takes a room in London and after gaining his father's reluctant consent and a small allowance he devotes himself to writing. In London Lance meets and is attracted to Olive Gadsden, a mannikin. Mary Merris, a friend of Old Pybus, takes care of a blind brother.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

SUSPICION.
Olive looked at him critically as he might have looked at a stranger, and realizing as he looked at her that in spite of their intimacy—they were strangers. It struck him as being rather deplorable, though the fault was as much his as hers, for he had desired to see more in her than the mannequin, or a dancing girl on a stage appealing to him with legs and arms. They had lost themselves in the physical, and in emerging from things physical he seemed to become aware of her meretricious smartness, the thinness of her, both physically and spiritually. Yet, could she help it? Had he asked her to be anything else? Could she be anything else? The white bungalow looked rather soiled and shabby on this grey August day. Almost it was as shabby and unmythical as an anonymous room in some anonymous back street hotel. Lance conceived distaste for the place as he looked at it, and he was moved to wonder whether it affected Olive in the same way. She gave a sudden little laugh. "Dearie, he's taking down the lanterns." The owner of the bungalow, looking serious in a white sweater and flannel trousers, was standing on a garden chair, unfastening the Chinese lanterns. Heavy rain drops were making little circles on the dead surface of the river. "Poor devil!" said Lance. She jerked a sudden glance at him. With her lover feeling like that? Or just how was he feeling? Inevitably the rain came down. They had to pole hurriedly into the backwater and spread the canvas cover, and make tea, with the rain dripping from the willows and the alders. English weather, river weather, reality and not romance. After tea, Lance lit a pipe, and with a preoccupied expression, explored the interior of his suitcase. He had brought with him those five chapters that Venerable had disapproved of; it was his intention to re-read them. "What's that, boy?" "Manuscript. Care to read some?" He got the impression that her attitude was full of watchfulness and suspicion. "We're quite domesticated—aren't we? I ought to have brought some sewing." "Not a bad idea." He passed her the last of the five chapters. "Read it. You can give me an opinion." She asked him for a cigarette, and having lit it, she sat considering him. "Think my opinion's worth anything?" "It might be. What do you read?" "Not much. Edgar Allan Poe, and Isaac Gilchrist." "Edgar Allan?" said Lance, "good Lord!" She made a face at him. "You—don't—yourself serious?" "Who's going to wash up the tea things?" "Woman's department." "Thanks. We'll do it presently, together. Meanwhile—I'll go and visit Clara." "Who's Clara?" "The lady of the bungalow. She's rather amusing. No dinner until the lanterns, dearie, tonight." He gave her the enigma of a smile. "Smiling paraffin lamp—probably. Tomato soup, tongue and salad, prunes and tinned milk." "Feminist." "Well—go and see." She lifted a flap of the canvas, and uncovered the wet grass bank, and the slimy black stem of an alder. The rain was coming down. She looked a little pathetic. "O, boy, I'll get wet." He glanced at her flimsy shoes and silk stockings, and suddenly he realized the pathos of her, but not as she would have wished him to realize it. He was aware of her pretty fineness, of all her little expedients and tugenities, her oneness against the world, the finality of her appeal. She had just that face, and that mouth, and her mannerisms, and a kind of cheap defiance. He felt sorry. "Stay here—I'll go presently." She looked at him for a moment and her eyes puzzled him. He did not know how quick a woman can be in picking out the threads of a man's mood towards her. "Thanks—awfully—dear Edgar." She was out of the point and up the bank like a cat with wet fur, and he sat and pulled at his pipe, and looked at the grass bank, and tried to sort out the situation. Was it that she suspected—? Or could a woman be jealous of a few pieces of paper pinned together with brass clips? Vaguely irritated, he settled himself to read those five chapters. At the end of 10 minutes he was relighting a pipe that had gone out. His face was very serious. He was thinking, "How did I come to write this stuff?" He was feeling disturbed and perplexed, for a few weeks ago he had been so sure that he had written something that was both vivid and very clever, but on this wet August evening he saw his impressionisms hanging like chunks of red meat in a butcher shop. It was all glare and crude flesh, a butcherly business, and he was conscious of being shocked by it because it was his. But how was it that he had written the stuff, and thought it good? Had he been obsessed? Had he been seeing too many painted faces, and spliced faces? It was not that the work was sinister; you can be fastidious and very sinister—but these chapters were vulgar, and vulgarity is a personal product. The thing in itself need not be vulgar; it is the way in which you treat it. And he had given those chapters to the Venerable! He felt hot. But was it all bad because he was a writer? He read on. He was able to assure himself that the rest of it was almost as unpardonable, and that it produced in him a sense of anger and of heat. What much! Though there was nothing moral—so-called—in his gesture of scorn, but the impatience of the craftsman who has caught himself perpetrating baseness. Away with it! The stuff might just as well go into the river. But he held his hand. Olive came either down the bank and into the punt, and she returned with the happy animation of a woman who has thought things over. She sat down among her cushions at the far end, and made a whimsical face at him. "Oh, boy, why didn't we bring gum boots? Clara, poor dear, won't be able to cook us any dinner." "Oh, how?" "Pain in her poor tummy. I'm going to be cook. Say, I want to read some of boy's story." "You do?" "Please." His glance was deliberate and thoughtful. He tossed the chapters across to her. "Right; you shall. My writings' pretty awful." "Why don't you have it typed?" "Economy—and caution. I'm not going to have it photographed until the picture is complete. The critic in the punt. You can say just what you jolly well think." "And supposing—" "Call it tripe. I've only got three cigarettes left; forget to fill my case. Shall put on a mac, and stroll up to the village." "Leave me one of the three. Thanks, old thing. Now I'm going to be awful studious." After slipping off her shoes, she curled up among the cushions, and Lance, getting into his mackintosh, scrambled out and up the bank. (Copyright, 1934.) (Continued Tomorrow.)

"O, boy, I'll get wet!"

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

Q.—Salary of State Representative.—The salary of a member of the Missouri House of Representatives for the year 1922 was $4,000 a year, plus a per diem of $10 a day for each day of session. A Constitutional Amendment to be voted on next November would fix the salary at $10,000 a year, plus a per diem of $10 a day for each day of session, except the biennial period, when the compensation would be $15,000. They stay in Jefferson City when attending the legislature.

Q.—Legal definitions.—Larceny, embezzlement, libel, vagrancy, etc., would be very hard to publish in a law text book at the public library.

Q.—Charters to authorize the existence of Greek letter societies or fraternities.—The charter should be secured from the head of the institution.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

Dentists Advise This Brush

Follow their advice. They know the Clean-BE-Tween dental brush is the only way known to dental science to keep the back of all teeth and the hidden surfaces in between clean and sparkling white. Decay, tartar, pyorrhea, dangerous gum infections almost always break out at the back of the teeth where toothbrushes do not and can not reach. Have a tooth which can not be cleaned. Don't let white teeth in front deceive you.

And the brush costs less. The handle lasts for years. When necessary you replace the brush part at a cost of only a few cents. At all drug and department stores.

USE MAKE-UP ARTISTICALLY

By Anne Jordan

THE question these days is not how do you look, but how do you make up? Because what nature failed to do for you the beauty parlors have more than made up. All you need is just face surface that's a little better than a back fence, and if you study your face and apply makeup right, you can look like a million dollars in spite of many natural handicaps.

But makeup is a tricky art. It looks worse when it's overdone than if dispensed with entirely. There's nothing lovely or artistic about a girl who runs around with a Cupid's bow painted sharply around her mouth. Easier egg of red paint splashed on each cheek, and her lashes mascaraed out until they look like a horse's optic fringes. And yet that's how a great many women forfeit all the work and effort that beauty specialists have spent trying to help them attain that "joy forever."

I think the main reason people overdo makeup is because they dress under artificial light. They do not have their dressing tables near a window, and when they get ready to put on makeup they accommodate their complexion to the lights that turn on to see by. This never works right. Artificial light makes an artificial face look fine, but what does daylight do to it?

You should have your dressing table between two windows, if such a thing is possible, or at least beside one window. And if this still is among the impossible features of your boudoir, after you've finished dressing you should take your hand mirror to the window and see if you look all right by daylight.

Never overpaint your face and never leave lipstick outlined so

Don't look like you're wearing you, fix it up until it does, but everything they sell all at one do not advertize to a critical world time. If your face doesn't suit that you're artificial.

FLYERS PICK UP 2 MEN OF ITALIA RELIEF EXPEDITION

Capt. Sora of Alpine Chas-surs and Van Dongen, Dutch Engineer, Taken Off Foyn Island.

SEARCH BEGUN FOR REST OF MISSING

ix Who Drifted Away in Bag of Dirigible and Amundsen Thought to Be 30 Miles Away.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 14.—An intimation that Dr. Finn Amundsen was still alive when his companions left him on the ice pack was received by the Swedish government today. As a consequence the Admiralty has ordered Swedish flyers in the North to search for him.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 14.—Capt. Sora, Italian chasseur, and a companion, the Dutch engineer, Van Dongen, were rescued from Foyn Island by a party consisting of two Swedish naval seaplanes and one Finnish plane, says a report received from the Swedish expedition at Spitzbergen today.

The machines took off from Kings Bay shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday night and flew in a fog for some 20 miles to the east where when the airmen sighted a light which was being waved by the men who set out more than month ago with dog teams in an effort to take help to the stranded crew of the Italia.

The seaplanes came down on an open water on the Eastern coast of the island. Capt. Sora was taken aboard one of the Swedish seaplanes and Van Dongen was taken aboard the Finnish plane.

The three machines had difficulty in getting away, for the ice had melted in on the open watered area, but at length they took off and flew back to their base through a thick fog, landing safely at 2 o'clock in the morning.

The Swedish planes were piloted by Capt. Tornberg, leader of the Italian expedition, and by Lieut. Hansen, while the Finnish plane was piloted by M. Lohr.

Search Continues for Six Men Who Drifted in Dirigible's Bag.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 14.—With 10 men saved from the Italian Arctic rescue planes and the Russian icebreaker Krasin were intent today on reaching some 20 miles to the east of Foyn Island. There it was thought that six men who drifted away after the fatal crash on May 24, and possibly Roald Amundsen and his five companions, on a search rescue seaplane might be found.

The latest to be rescued, Capt. Sora of the Italian Alpine Chas-surs and Dutch engineer, Van Dongen, who had attempted to make a perilous march over the ice to search for Italia castaways, were safe aboard the base ship Italia at Milano today. They were picked off Foyn Island by airplanes and brought to Kings Bay.
Dependence placed on the Soviet ice ship Chukhovskiy for locating the position of the men cast away from Foyn Island since his keen eyes spotted the Italia, Capt.
Lippo Zappi and Alberto Mari-ni directed the Krasin to rescue from an iceberg. The man and four companions were rescued down on the ice near Cape Hansen, damaging their plane. They succeeded in reaching land, established a base and busied themselves in repairing the broken landing gear of their craft.

Italian planes also will join in the search over the ice of Queen Maud Sea in the neighborhood of 20 degrees, 45 minutes north and 20 degrees 31 minutes west.
It is known that the balloon party of the Italia would be found in the location and the hope is held that he and his companions may have reached this point and be marooned with them. Dr.
Nansen, Norwegian explorer, has always thought that the missing Italians would be found on the ice and the Soviet rescue commission holds a similar view.
The Norwegian icebreaker Dragoon was making its way toward the camp of a marooned rescuer named, a Dane. He had started out with Capt. Sora but fell out and was left at Cape Brun with a dog team and provisions.
The physician aboard the Krasin, which rescued seven members of the Italia crew on Thursday,
